Foreign Policy Issue Can Beat GOP, Truman Claims

President Blasts "Special Interests" Backing Taft

Charges Republican Campaign Of "Lies, Smears"

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (AP)—President Truman sounded a fighting Democratic keynote tonight with charges that the Republicans will try to buy the presidency next year in a campaign of "lies and smears."

Mr. Truman predicted that "special interests" will spend more money in "trying to defeat the Democratic Party next year than has ever before been spent in any election in the history of the republic."

He singled out Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio, an avowed candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, as the beneficiary of "special interests" which, he said, "poured money" into Ohio during Taft's 1950 re-election campaign. Taft will testify here Monday in a Senate elections subcommittee investigation of that campaign.

Addresses Women's Club

Mr. Truman said in an address prepared for the National Women's Democratic Club banquet he hopes the Republicans won't "play with dynamite" by making foreign policy an issue in 1952.

"We can meet this issue if it comes," he declared. "If the Republicans do make foreign policy an issue in the campaign, it will be the best issue the Democratic party has. We can stand on our record on foreign policy and our achievements in the struggle for peace.

"If the Republican Party takes the fatal step, and decides to throw our program for world peace into the midst of a political fight, I am sure that the Republican Party will be overwhelmingly repudiated by the people."

Mr. Truman, who flew here from his Key West, Fla., vacation spot to fill the banquet date he said had been made for him by Mrs. Truman, gave no direct indication of his future political intentions.

"I'm not going to make any announcement about who the candidate will be, although I do have some ideas on that subject," he said.

This was interpreted immediately as a sign that if he doesn't plan to run again, he fully expects to name his successor as a party nominee.

Campaign "Well Financed"

With eight months to go before major party conventions, the President called the signal for a vigorous Democratic fight against what he predicted will be an attempt by "the bitter, partisan backward-looking old guard" of the Republicans to "try to belittle our progress and our prosperity at home."

Contending that the GOP will try "dirty smear" tactics on a national scale, Mr. Truman declared:

"I do not expect the Democratic Party to take that kind of attack lying down. I do not expect my party to run away from a fight."

Mr. Truman spoke after spending part of the day at his White House desk for the first time since he left here Nov. 8 for his Florida workplay vacation.

In his talk to the Democratic women, Mr. Truman said he expects the Republican attack next year to be "well organized—and well financed."

Vishinsky May Participate In Disarming Plan

UN Rejects 3 Korean Cease-Fire Proposals

PARIS, Nov. 20 (INS) — Soviet Foreign Minister Vishinsky may pull another sudden switch tomorrow and agree to participate in the disarmament commission proposed by the West.

But he still is expected to stand firm on basic parts of Russia's own arms reduction plan.

Vishinsky probably will speak before the political committee and, acting on fresh instructions from the Kremlin, reply to the disarmament proposal made by U. S. Secretary of State Acheson on Monday.

Acheson had urged creation of a 12-nation disarmament commission to start the ball rolling toward arms counts, inspection and reduction. But Vishinsky is not expected to make any major concessions to the West when he speaks.

The political committee adjourned for a lack of speakers today.

Brazil led the small nations in urging the big powers to settle their differences. Brazilian Delegate Pimental Brandao said "success or defeat of our hopes rests squarely on the Soviet Union."

The UN, meanwhile, received the North Korean "peace" proposal, calling for a halt to the Korean fighting as the first step.

UN officials, including Assembly President Luis Padilla Nervo, agreed to treat it as a non-governmental communication unless Russia formally requests a discussion.

UN officials and non-Communist officials rejected the first three points of the North Korean proposal as containing military subject matter which had to be left in the hands of Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway for settlement.

Girl Wants AWOL Soldier To Return

WAUKESHA, Wis., Nov. 20 (INS) —A pretty Wisconsin high school girl for whom a hillbilly soldier went AWOL and traveled 1,000 miles made an appeal today for her admirer to hurry back to camp.

Carol Amidon, 17, of Waukesha said she last saw Peter Grainger, 26-year-old recruit, Friday afernoon, and said:

"He said he was going back to camp. I hope he does. I don't want him to get in trouble."

Grainger, who came out of the New Mexico mountains where he had spent all his life to enlist last month in the army, disappeared Nov. 12 from the Army Proving Grounds at Aberdeen, Md.

Two days later he turned up in Waukesha.

Carol said:

"Peter came to see me at the high school—got me out of class as a matter of fact. He tagged along with me to my classes and said I was his first date."

Carol explained she had written to Grainger when she read newspaper stories about his enlistment and his astounding score on his army entrance examination.

Grainger, who scored a 93 on the test, enlisted after his father's death. His score, officials said, ranked him with the upper seven per cent of the population in intelligence, although he said he had received no formal education and taught himself by reading books in his family's isolated cabin.

Ginger Rogers Signs Long-Term TV Contract

NEW YORK, Nov. 20 (AP)—The signing of Ginger Rogers to a long-term, exclusive contract was announced today by the CBS television network.

The amount involved was not disclosed but was reported to be close to one million dollars.

Miss Rogers, currently starring in the Broadway play "Love And Let Love," will star in a half-hour weekly program starting in April of next year.

Hunters Kill Horse

STAMFORD, Vt., Nov. 20 (AP)—Despite an offer of free eye examinations for hunters by Vermont optometrists, Louis Erras' white horse was shot and killed yesterday, apparently mistaken for a deer.

Louis' son, Charles, 18, was leading the horse from a pasture to the barn when he heard the crack of a rifle and the horse dropped at his feet.

Jailer's Wife, Daughter Foil Attempted Break

CLAY, W. Va., Nov. 20 (AP)—A jailer's wife and his 15-year-old daughter thwarted a jailbreak today by a prisoner who had knocked out the jailer with an iron bar.

Jailer Newman Jones, 59, said he was struck on the head by Kenneth Davis, 19, when he went into the jail quarters for a routine inspection. The bar he used, Jones said, had been sawed from his cell.

His wife rushed to the barred door of the jail quarters when she heard the commotion and saw her husband stretched out on the floor and Davis with the iron bar. But she couldn't get in because the door was locked and Davis had the keys.

Her daughter, young Gloria Ann, also heard the scuffle and came running to her mother's side with a pistol. Mrs. Jones cocked the weapon and forced Davis to toss her the keys.

She then pulled her husband to safety and backed Davis into another cell.

Evidence Grows In "Atrocity" Deaths Probe

6,000 Yanks Thought Slain By Chinese

TOKYO, Wednesday, Nov. 21 (AP) —General Headquarters said yesterday there was "considerable evidence" that approximately 6,000 U. S. soldiers captured by the Communists were victims of "death by atrocity."

The statement from Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway's headquarters emphasized, however, that "there is no conclusive proof as to the number of dead" among the 10,836 Americans still carried as missing.

The estimate was 500 higher than that made last week by Col. James M. Hanley, chief of the U. S. Eighth Army's war crimes section.

Both the Chinese Communist and the North Korean radios hotly denied Hanley's charge. The Communists in turn accused the United Nations command of killing or starving to death 17,000 Red prisoners.

Hanley apparently anticipated this. His report declared that all Red prisoners were well cared for in accordance with the Geneva Convention governing treatment of prisoners of war.

While public information officers would not comment, the latest statement from the headquarters of the supreme U. N. commanders apparently was issued at the prompting of the Pentagon.

The defense department asked for clarification of a statement issued by Ridgway over the weekend, which backed up Hanley's report of atrocities but gave no figures.

The latest statement said the total number of known U. S. dead as a result of Red atricities was 365. Of this number, 254 victims were identified and relatives were notified they were killed in action.

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 20 (AP)—An Argentine customs warehouse caught fire today and Buenos Aires' port area was rocked by a series of explosions of stored chemicals, acids and solvents.

Expect Reds To Make Own Truce Terms

27th Meeting Is Set At Panmunjom Site

MUNSAN, Korea, Wednesday, Nov. 21 (AP)—Communist truce negotiators were expected to present their own cease-fire plan at a fateful armistice meeting today or insist on revising an Allied proposal designed to halt fighting in Korea by Christmas.

The Reds promised to come back from a propaganda packed two-day recess with a reply to the United Nations command's offer. The U. N. plan would end the fighting within 30 days on the present battle line if full agreement is reached on all armistice issues.

The 27th meeting of the joint cease-fire committee was scheduled for 11 a. m. today (9 p. m. Tuesday, EST) at Panmunjom.

The Reds asked for the delay after a 75-minute session Monday in order to give the U. N. plan "more mature consideration."

Unlikely To Adopt Plan

Most observers were agreed the Reds were unlikely to adopt the Allied plan as written. They were expected either to propose revisions or come up with a new plan of their own similar to the U. N. proposal.

If the Reds chose to take a stand reflecting their propaganda broadcasts of the past two days, it was considered likely the Korean truce talks would bog down and perhaps be broken off entirely.

In essence, the Allied truce formula called for: 1. Hostilities until the full armistice is signed. 2. The present battle line as basis for a provisional buffer zone. 3. The provisional buffer zone to become permanent if full agreement is reached on other armistice issues within 30 days. 4. A new provisional line if the 30-day dead-line is not met.

Both Peiping and Pyongyang radios opened up with hot blasts at the U. N. command shortly after the Monday meeting ended. They quoted the foreign ministers of Red China and North Korea as authority for their statements.

Allies Regain Hill

SEOUL, Korea, Wednesday, Nov. 21 (AP)—Allied troops lost one hill position but recaptured it in a fierce counterattack on the Western Korean front Tuesday. Four other Red attacks were repulsed on the central front.

In the east United Nations units gained up to one-half mile in high ground northwest of the rugged punchbowl area, some 20 miles north of parallel 38, the U. S. Eighth Army communique said.

(The North Korean army communique, broadcast by Pyongyang radio claimed that Communist artillery fire broke up 10 attacks by the U. S. Seventh Division and South Korean Third Division in this sector, inflicting heavy losses. There was no confirmation of this enemy claim.)

Rain and thick clouds over northernmost Korea cut sharply into Allied air operations Tuesday.

Gunman Gets Orders To Leave

NEW YORK, Nov. 20 (AP)—Albert Anastasia, reputed trigger man of the old Murder, Inc., mob, reportedly has been ordered to get out of town or face gangland execution.

The New York anti-crime committee, in a report today, said the high court of the underworld passed sentence on Anastasia—after reprieving him from death.

The committee said Anastasia, a shadowy figure on New York's waterfront, was accused of working a "double cross" of some unspecified nature with Racketeer Willie Moretti.

Both were marked for death, the committee said, and Moretti was shot and killed Oct. 4 in a Cliffside Park, N. J., restaurant.

But Anastasia apparently was tipped off, the report continued, and failed to appear at the restaurant. Instead, he entered a hospital.

The crime committee said the underworld later relented and called off its gunmen on condition Anastasia leave town. He reportedly is arranging to go to Hot Springs, Ark., a favorite hangout of some of the nation's top gangsters.

Army Nurse Wed, Ceremony Performed On Korean Front

SOMEWHERE IN NORTH KOREA, Nov. 20 (AP)—This was Lt. Madeline Quinn's wedding day.

A snowy white jeep brought the Seattle, Wash., army nurse to "church"—a simple tent on a hillside north of the 38th parallel. An organ burst into "Here Comes The Bride. . . . . ."

As she reached the small altar, Lt. Quinn smiled at her groom, Lt. Robert G. Lawson of Seneca Falls, N. Y. He grinned back nervously.

Chaplain Henry J. Palmer of Brooklyn, N. Y., began the Catholic nuptial mass.

Three generals sat in the first row on "his side" of the church tent. The stars of Maj. Gen. Glovis E. Byers, commanding general of the Tenth Corps., Brig. Gen. John S. Guthrie and Brig. Gen. Kenneth S. Sweany gleamed brightly.

Twelve nurses from Lt. Quinn's unit occupied the first row on "her side" of the church.

Next to the groom the proudest man in the church was the dentist —Maj. Albert J. Di Matteo of Jackson Heights, N. Y., who made the wedding ring for the bride.

He spent several weeks scrounging old gold fillings from friends at other dental units, then recast the former inlays into a double band wedding ring for Madeline.

A wedding breakfast for the bridal party was held at the "home" of the groom—the 515th Ordnance Company. He has been in Korea for 15 months. Then came the reception at the bride's "home" for eight months—the 8209 Mobile Army Surgical Hospital.

The bride and groom were toasted with champagne flown in for the occasion from Japan.

Lt. and Mrs. Lawson cut their wedding cake, brought in by helicopter from below the 38th parallel, with a sabre captured from a North Korean officer.

After the reception the couple left for the honeymoon cottage—a Korean hut decorated by the nurses of the hospital.

So ended the first wartime American marriage north of Korea's 38th parallel.

Everything's Quiet Now

British soldiers enjoy traditional teatime during an off-duty period at their barracks in Ismailia, Suez Canal trouble spot. An armed patrol at right waits in a Bren gun-carrier, ready to move out at a moment's notice. Ismailia, scene of a fatal week-end clash between British and Egyptians that resulted in the death of five British officers and 13 Egyptian police and civilians, has been the focal point of disorders in the current canal area dispute.

Peace Center Wins Foreign Agent Charge

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (AP)—The government today lost its case against the Peace Information Center and five of its leaders.

U. S. District Judge Matthew F. McGuire entered a judgement of acquittal for the Center and five individual defendants, charged with violating the Foreign Agents Registration Act.

He ruled the prosecution failed to link up with a foreign principal the activities of the Center in the circulation in this country of the so-called Stockholm peace appeal.

Secretary of State Acheson branded the peace appeal as a "propaganda trick" in a spurious Russian peace offensive.

The indictment, returned last February, alleged the Peace Information Center, which had its headquarters in New York, acted as publicity agent for the Committee of the World Congress of the Defenders of Peace. That organization was formed in Paris and had its headquarters there.

The Center was accused of failing to register with the attorney general as an agent of a foreign principal. The individual defendants were accused of failing to cause it to register.

First Judge McGuire, on his own motion, entered a judgement of acquittal for Sylvia Soloff, one of the defendants. He said, without elaboration, that the government's evidence did not warrant her case going to the jury. This evidence tended to show Miss Soloff was a paid employe of the Center rather than a policy-maker.

Then, after listening to hours of legal arguments, he entered a similar judgement for the Center and the four other defendants. They were Dr. W. E. B. DuBois, 83-year-old negro educator and author; Mrs. Elizabeth Moos, Abbott Simon and Kryle Elkin, all of New York.

Man's Headless Body Is Found In Woods

NORFOLK Va., Nov. 20 (AP)—The headless body of Walter E. Barr—its legs wrapped around a tree, its shirt ripped and torn and the belt unbuckled — was found today by hunters in adjacent Princess Anne County.

It was found 12 feet from a road leading toward the lake about a mile away in which the brutally beaten body of Mrs. Mamie Smithwick was discovered on Oct. 6.

Barr's bullet-punctured head, severed from the body by someone medical authorities believe is familiar with anatomy, was found in a clump of honeysuckle Nov. 10 about 200 yards from where the torso was found.

Before the head was discovered and identified as that of Barr, the 34-year-old carpenter had been charged with murder in the death of Mrs. Smithwick. The two last were seen alive Oct. 3 on their way to a drive-in movie not far from where their bodies were located.

Navy Planes Crash, One Pilot Killed

SAN JOSE, Cal., Nov. 20 (INS)—Two Navy fighter planes collided over San Jose today and the pilot of one of the planes was believed killed when his plane exploded in the air.

The other plane limped back to Moffett Field, just north of San Jose, and landed safely.

Iran, Egypt Premiers Meet

CAIRO, Egypt, Nov. 20 (AP)—Two British-hating premiers of the Middle East—Mohammed Mossadegh of Iran and Mustapha Nahas Pasha of Egypt—embraced and kissed in a dramatic show of Moslem solidarity here today.

Tens of thousands of Egyptians lionized the feeble Iranian premier, who arrived from Washington for a four-day state visit. They cheered him frantically at the airport, as he drove along the streets to the famous Shepheards Hotel and as he paid his respects to King Farouk.

Crowds outside his hotel hailed him as an "enemy of the British" and a "hero of revolution." They shouted "revolution" and "we want arms" as the Egyptian premier drove away after a 50-minute call on the Iranian.

Police declared a state of emergency and stationed reserves throughout the city to preserve order during the visit of Mossadegh, who is returning home from a 40-day stay in the United States.

Move To Avert Blood Plasma Workers Strike

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (AP)—Union members were called to a meeting in Philadelphia tonight to vote on an agreement aimed at heading off a midnight strike of blood plasma workers and maintaining the flow of the vital fluid to Korea.

The settlement formula was shoved through government mediators here about dawn today after a 16-hour session with representatives of the Sharp and Dohme Laboratories and the CIO-United Chemical Workers. Its details were not disclosed pending action by the workers at the Philadelphia session.

Gen. Eisenhower Talks Politics To Sen. Carlson

PARIS, Nov. 20 (AP)—A personal friend of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower said today that if he runs, it will be on the Republican ticket.

After an hour's conference with the Supreme Commander of the allied powers in Europe, Sen. Frank Carlson (R-Kans) said:

"If Gen. Eisenhower runs for President it will be on the Republican ticket. There is no question—there never has been any question—about that. I am hopeful that the situation will be such that he will be available."

The talk was perhaps the longest session that Eisenhower had had with any visiting editor of politician in recent weeks. Carlson was asked point blank at a news conference at Eisenhower's headquarters after the interview as to whether they had talked politics.

"Kansans never meet but that they get into politics," Carlson replied.

Other Kansans in Paris said Carlson is one of Eisenhower's closest personal and political friends and advisors, ranking next to Milton Eisenhower, the general's brother, and Roy A. Roberts, president of the Kansas City Star.

Carlson was only one of many travelers who saw Eisenhower today, but he is the only one who indicated that politics was brought up.

A party of touring newspapermen brought to Europe by the army to look at defense preparations here got a regular "pattern" talk. They were given a detailed briefing on military plans and wishes by Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, Eisenhower's chief of staff.

Beer Prices Face One-Cent Raise

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (AP)—A penny-a-bottle boost in the price of beer for home consumption is due to be authorized by the government about Dec. 1.

An Office of Price Stabilization official said today a regulation covering beer prices from the brewery to the consumer is almost ready and should be issued within ten days.

Hoboes Ride Cab To Bank To Request $2,000 Loan

NEW YORK, Nov. 20 (AP)—Times must be good. Even the hoboes are talking expansion.

Six of them abandoned the Bowery today and sought out the vice president of the modern industrial bank on lower Fifth Avenue. They rode a cab, no less.

Harry Baronian, editor of the Bowery News, was their spokesman. He told the bankers he wanted a $2,000 loan.

While he made his pitch, his fellow hoboes were not idle. They roamed the bank lobby peddling the Bowery News—a sort of newspaper champion of the non-working man.

Baronian said Bowery hoboes provide free entertainment every Saturday night for about 50 persons, including servicemen. He didn't describe the entertainment.

"A loan of say $2,000," Baronian explained, "will enable the boys to take over a dilapidated building and the boys can fix it up."

That would give them a roomier entertainment center, he said.

It also would provide sleeping space for about 20 hoboes now paying 50 cents a night in a flophouse. Thus, Baronian figured, they could repay the loan at the rate of $300 a month.

"It makes sense," Baronian told the bankers.

Said Abner Jackson, vice president of the bank:

"We listened to their arguments and we looked at their problem with a good deal of sympathetic interest. We told them we would consider their application."

Cargo Craft Now Missing Embassy Says

Military Ship Believed To Have Lost Its Way

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Nov. 20 (AP)—A United States military plane carrying diplomatic cargo and four crewmen was fired upon by Hungarian and Romanian border guards Monday and is now missing, the American Embassy announced tonight.

Sketchy details from Yugoslav sources suggested the plane had been from 40 to 200 miles off its scheduled course to Belgrade from Erding air base near Munich, Germany.

No Damage Reported

Reports from the pilot, as disclosed by the embassy, made no mention of damage from the shooting.

A day-long search was carried on today by British, American and Italian planes along Italy's Adriatic coast from an air base at Treviso, Italy, and will be extended into Northern Yugoslavia tomorrow.

The embassy said it was believed the missing crewmen became lost and mistook the Drava River, flowing close to the Hungarian and Romanian borders, for the Sava which marks the air corridor to Belgrade. Both rivers are tributaries of the Danube. The Drava runs 40 miles east of the Sava's course.

The U. S. Air Force announced early today that the plane, a two-engined C-47 transport, left Erding airbase yesterday morning with freight and supplies for the American Embassy here.

It had eight hours supply of gasoline and was last heard from at 4:16 p. m. (10:16 a. m. Eastern Standard Time)—nearly eight hours after its departure.

At that time the pilot messaged: "low on fuel. Not sure I can make Venice or emergency landing."

The plane was scheduled to fly over Innsbruck in Western Austria to Venice, thence east to Zagreb and down the Sava to Belgrade.

The Embassy statement said the plane was sighted entering Yugoslavia from the direction of Udine and near Ljubljana, on the Sava in northern Yugoslavia.

"The plane, according to Yugoslav sources, reported itself over Zagreb when actually it was over Varazdin (40 miles to the north-east of Zagreb and on the Drava)," the Embassy statement said "it is believed the pilot mistook the Drava River for the Sava River."

Pilot Turned Back

The Embassy said the transport later was sighted north of Viroitica, 60 miles southeast of Varazdin and only about 10 miles from the Hungarian border. Later it was seen near Beli Manastir, about 75 miles farther east and about the same distance from the Hungarian line as Virovitica.

It finally was traced as far east as Jasa Tomic, about 50 miles north-east of Belgrade on the Romanian border.

"It was fired upon by Hungarian border guards, according to a report from the pilot," the Embassy statement said. "It finally went as far as Jasa Tomic, where it was fired upon by the Romanian border guards."

The embassy said it was believed the pilot then realized the plane was off course and turned about. In two later reports he said he was near Zagreb and then west of Zagreb, headed towards Udine in Italy.

Bogus Surgeon Faces Discharge

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 20 (INS)—The fantastic story of a Massachusetts man who performed successfully several intricate battlefield operations in Korea while posing as a surgeon was unfolded today by the Royal Canadian Navy.

The RCN announced that the imposter—Ferdinand Waldo Demara, Jr., of Lawrence, Mass.—will be discharged for fraud and will not be court-martialed for masquerading as Lt. Joseph C. Cyr, a surgeon.

Demara's medical experience was limited to only a few months' service as an orderly in a Boston infirmary.

Contacted in Esquimalt, B. C., after he was sent home from Korea, he told interviewers, "the navy has told me to say nothing about it."

In Grand Falls, Nebraska, the genuine Dr. Joseph Cyr revealed that he once knew Demara, who was then a lay brother—Brother John of the Christian Brothers teaching order.

Cyr reported that his birth certificate and medical degree had disappeared and that Demara apparently took possession of them and used them to join the Canadian Navy.

6,000 Yanks Thought Slain By Chinese

TOKYO, Wednesday, Nov. 21 (AP)—General Headquarters said yesterday there was "considerable evidence" that approximately 6,000 U. S. soldiers captured by the Communists were victims of "death by atrocity."

The statement from Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway's headquarters emphasized, however, that "there is no conclusive proof as to the number of dead" among the 10,836 Americans still carried as missing.

The estimate was 500 higher than that made last week by Col. James M. Hanley, chief of the U. S. Eighth Army's war crimes section.

Both the Chinese Communist and the North Korean radios hotly denied Hanley's charge. The Communists in turn accused the United Nations command of killing or starving to death 17,000 Red prisoners.

Hanley apparently anticipated this. His report declared that all Red prisoners were well cared for in accordance with the Geneva Convention governing treatment of prisoners of war.

While public information officers would not comment, the latest statement from the headquarters of the supreme U. N. commanders apparently was issued at the prompting of the Pentagon.

The defense department asked for clarification of a statement issued by Ridgway over the weekend, which backed up Hanley's report of atrocities but gave no figures.

The latest statement said the total number of known U. S. dead as a result of Red atricities was 365. Of this number, 254 victims were identified and relatives were notified they were killed in action.

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 20 (AP)—An Argentine customs warehouse caught fire today and Buenos Aires' port area was rocked by a series of explosions of stored chemicals, acids and solvents.

Expect Reds To Make Own Truce Terms

27th Meeting Is Set At Panmunjom Site

MUNSAN, Korea, Wednesday, Nov. 21 (AP)—Communist truce negotiators were expected to present their own cease-fire plan at a fateful armistice meeting today or insist on revising an Allied proposal designed to halt fighting in Korea by Christmas.

The Reds promised to come back from a propaganda packed two-day recess with a reply to the United Nations command's offer. The U. N. plan would end the fighting within 30 days on the present battle line if full agreement is reached on all armistice issues.

The 27th meeting of the joint cease-fire committee was scheduled for 11 a. m. today (9 p. m. Tuesday, EST) at Panmunjom.

The Reds asked for the delay after a 75-minute session Monday in order to give the U. N. plan "more mature consideration."

Unlikely To Adopt Plan

Most observers were agreed the Reds were unlikely to adopt the Allied plan as written. They were expected either to propose revisions or come up with a new plan of their own similar to the U. N. proposal.

If the Reds chose to take a stand reflecting their propaganda broadcasts of the past two days, it was considered likely the Korean truce talks would bog down and perhaps be broken off entirely.

In essence, the Allied truce formula called for: 1. Hostilities until the full armistice is signed. 2. The present battle line as basis for a provisional buffer zone. 3. The provisional buffer zone to become permanent if full agreement is reached on other armistice issues within 30 days. 4. A new provisional line if the 30-day dead-line is not met.

Both Peiping and Pyongyang radios opened up with hot blasts at the U. N. command shortly after the Monday meeting ended. They quoted the foreign ministers of Red China and North Korea as authority for their statements.

Allies Regain Hill

SEOUL, Korea, Wednesday, Nov. 21 (AP)—Allied troops lost one hill position but recaptured it in a fierce counterattack on the Western Korean front Tuesday. Four other Red attacks were repulsed on the central front.

In the east United Nations units gained up to one-half mile in high ground northwest of the rugged punchbowl area, some 20 miles north of parallel 38, the U. S. Eighth Army communique said.

(The North Korean army communique, broadcast by Pyongyang radio claimed that Communist artillery fire broke up 10 attacks by the U. S. Seventh Division and South Korean Third Division in this sector, inflicting heavy losses. There was no confirmation of this enemy claim.)

Rain and thick clouds over northernmost Korea cut sharply into Allied air operations Tuesday.

Army Nurse Wed, Ceremony Performed On Korean Front

SOMEWHERE IN NORTH KOREA, Nov. 20 (AP)—This was Lt. Madeline Quinn's wedding day.

A snowy white jeep brought the Seattle, Wash., army nurse to "church"—a simple tent on a hillside north of the 38th parallel. An organ burst into "Here Comes The Bride. . . . . ."

As she reached the small altar, Lt. Quinn smiled at her groom, Lt. Robert G. Lawson of Seneca Falls, N. Y. He grinned back nervously.

Chaplain Henry J. Palmer of Brooklyn, N. Y., began the Catholic nuptial mass.

Three generals sat in the first row on "his side" of the church tent. The stars of Maj. Gen. Glovis E. Byers, commanding general of the Tenth Corps., Brig. Gen. John S. Guthrie and Brig. Gen. Kenneth S. Sweany gleamed brightly.

Twelve nurses from Lt. Quinn's unit occupied the first row on "her side" of the church.

Next to the groom the proudest man in the church was the dentist—Maj. Albert J. Di Matteo of Jackson Heights, N. Y., who made the wedding ring for the bride.

He spent several weeks scrounging old gold fillings from friends at other dental units, then recast the former inlays into a double band wedding ring for Madeline.

A wedding breakfast for the bridal party was held at the "home" of the groom—the 515th Ordnance Company. He has been in Korea for 15 months. Then came the reception at the bride's "home" for eight months—the 8209 Mobile Army Surgical Hospital.

The bride and groom were toasted with champagne flown in for the occasion from Japan.

Lt. and Mrs. Lawson cut their wedding cake, brought in by helicopter from below the 38th parallel, with a sabre captured from a North Korean officer.

After the reception the couple left for the honeymoon cottage—a Korean hut decorated by the nurses of the hospital.

So ended the first wartime American marriage north of Korea's 38th parallel.

Gunman Gets Orders To Leave

NEW YORK, Nov. 20 (AP)—Albert Anastasia, reputed trigger man of the old Murder, Inc., mob, reportedly has been ordered to get out of town or face gangland execution.

The New York anti-crime committee, in a report today, said the high court of the underworld passed sentence on Anastasia—after reprieving him from death.

The committee said Anastasia, a shadowy figure on New York's waterfront, was accused of working a "double cross" of some unspecified nature with Racketeer Willie Moretti.

Both were marked for death, the committee said, and Moretti was shot and killed Oct. 4 in a Cliffside Park, N. J., restaurant.

But Anastasia apparently was tipped off, the report continued, and failed to appear at the restaurant. Instead, he entered a hospital.

The crime committee said the underworld later relented and called off its gunmen on condition Anastasia leave town. He reportedly is arranging to go to Hot Springs, Ark., a favorite hangout of some of the nation's top gangsters.

Everything's Quiet Now

British soldiers enjoy traditional teatime during an off-duty period at their barracks in Ismailia, Suez Canal trouble spot. An armed patrol at right waits in a Bren gun-carrier, ready to move out at a moment's notice. Ismailia, scene of a fatal week-end clash between British and Egyptians that resulted in the death of five British officers and 13 Egyptian police and civilians, has been the focal point of disorders in the current canal area dispute.

Peace Center Wins Foreign Agent Charge

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (AP)—The government today lost its case against the Peace Information Center and five of its leaders.

U. S. District Judge Matthew F. McGuire entered a judgement of acquittal for the Center and five individual defendants, charged with violating the Foreign Agents Registration Act.

He ruled the prosecution failed to link up with a foreign principal the activities of the Center in the circulation in this country of the so-called Stockholm peace appeal.

Secretary of State Acheson branded the peace appeal as a "propaganda trick" in a spurious Russian peace offensive.

The indictment, returned last February, alleged the Peace Information Center, which had its headquarters in New York, acted as publicity agent for the Committee of the World Congress of the Defenders of Peace. That organization was formed in Paris and had its headquarters there.

The Center was accused of failing to register with the attorney general as an agent of a foreign principal. The individual defendants were accused of failing to cause it to register.

First Judge McGuire, on his own motion, entered a judgement of acquittal for Sylvia Soloff, one of the defendants. He said, without elaboration, that the government's evidence did not warrant her case going to the jury. This evidence tended to show Miss Soloff was a paid employe of the Center rather than a policy-maker.

Then, after listening to hours of legal arguments, he entered a similar judgement for the Center and the four other defendants. They were Dr. W. E. B. DuBois, 83-year-old negro educator and author; Mrs. Elizabeth Moos, Abbott Simon and Kryle Elkin, all of New York.

Man's Headless Body Is Found In Woods

NORFOLK Va., Nov. 20 (AP)—The headless body of Walter E. Barr—its legs wrapped around a tree, its shirt ripped and torn and the belt unbuckled — was found today by hunters in adjacent Princess Anne County.

It was found 12 feet from a road leading toward the lake about a mile away in which the brutally beaten body of Mrs. Mamie Smithwick was discovered on Oct. 6.

Barr's bullet-punctured head, severed from the body by someone medical authorities believe is familiar with anatomy, was found in a clump of honeysuckle Nov. 10 about 200 yards from where the torso was found.

Before the head was discovered and identified as that of Barr, the 34-year-old carpenter had been charged with murder in the death of Mrs. Smithwick. The two last were seen alive Oct. 3 on their way to a drive-in movie not far from where their bodies were located.

Navy Planes Crash, One Pilot Killed

SAN JOSE, Cal., Nov. 20 (INS)—Two Navy fighter planes collided over San Jose today and the pilot of one of the planes was believed killed when his plane exploded in the air.

The other plane limped back to Moffett Field, just north of San Jose, and landed safely.

Iran, Egypt Premiers Meet

CAIRO, Egypt, Nov. 20 (AP)—Two British-hating premiers of the Middle East—Mohammed Mossadegh of Iran and Mustapha Nahas Pasha of Egypt—embraced and kissed in a dramatic show of Moslem solidarity here today.

Tens of thousands of Egyptians lionized the feeble Iranian premier, who arrived from Washington for a four-day state visit. They cheered him frantically at the airport, as he drove along the streets to the famous Shepheards Hotel and as he paid his respects to King Farouk.

Crowds outside his hotel hailed him as an "enemy of the British" and a "hero of revolution." They shouted "revolution" and "we want arms" as the Egyptian premier drove away after a 50-minute call on the Iranian.

Police declared a state of emergency and stationed reserves throughout the city to preserve order during the visit of Mossadegh, who is returning home from a 40-day stay in the United States.

Move To Avert Blood Plasma Workers Strike

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (AP)—Union members were called to a meeting in Philadelphia tonight to vote on an agreement aimed at heading off a midnight strike of blood plasma workers and maintaining the flow of the vital fluid to Korea.

The settlement formula was shoved through government mediators here about dawn today after a 16-hour session with representatives of the Sharp and Dohme Laboratories and the CIO-United Chemical Workers. Its details were not disclosed pending action by the workers at the Philadelphia session.

Gen. Eisenhower Talks Politics To Sen. Carlson

PARIS, Nov. 20 (AP)—A personal friend of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower said today that if he runs, it will be on the Republican ticket.

After an hour's conference with the Supreme Commander of the allied powers in Europe, Sen. Frank Carlson (R-Kans) said:

"If Gen. Eisenhower runs for President it will be on the Republican ticket. There is no question—there never has been any question—about that. I am hopeful that the situation will be such that he will be available."

The talk was perhaps the longest session that Eisenhower had had with any visiting editor of politician in recent weeks. Carlson was asked point blank at a news conference at Eisenhower's headquarters after the interview as to whether they had talked politics.

"Kansans never meet but that they get into politics," Carlson replied.

Other Kansans in Paris said Carlson is one of Eisenhower's closest personal and political friends and advisors, ranking next to Milton Eisenhower, the general's brother, and Roy A. Roberts, president of the Kansas City Star.

Carlson was only one of many travelers who saw Eisenhower today, but he is the only one who indicated that politics was brought up.

A party of touring newspapermen brought to Europe by the army to look at defense preparations here got a regular "pattern" talk. They were given a detailed briefing on military plans and wishes by Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, Eisenhower's chief of staff.

Beer Prices Face One-Cent Raise

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (AP)—A penny-a-bottle boost in the price of beer for home consumption is due to be authorized by the government about Dec. 1.

An Office of Price Stabilization official said today a regulation covering beer prices from the brewery to the consumer is almost ready and should be issued within ten days.

Hoboes Ride Cab To Bank To Request $2,000 Loan

NEW YORK, Nov. 20 (AP)—Times must be good. Even the hoboes are talking expansion.

Six of them abandoned the Bowery today and sought out the vice president of the modern industrial bank on lower Fifth Avenue. They rode a cab, no less.

Harry Baronian, editor of the Bowery News, was their spokesman. He told the bankers he wanted a $2,000 loan.

While he made his pitch, his fellow hoboes were not idle. They roamed the bank lobby peddling the Bowery News—a sort of newspaper champion of the non-working man.

Baronian said Bowery hoboes provide free entertainment every Saturday night for about 50 persons, including servicemen. He didn't describe the entertainment.

"A loan of say $2,000," Baronian explained, "will enable the boys to take over a dilapidated building and the boys can fix it up."

That would give them a roomier entertainment center, he said.

It also would provide sleeping space for about 20 hoboes now paying 50 cents a night in a flophouse. Thus, Baronian figured, they could repay the loan at the rate of $300 a month.

"It makes sense," Baronian told the bankers.

Said Abner Jackson, vice president of the bank:

"We listened to their arguments and we looked at their problem with a good deal of sympathetic interest. We told them we would consider their application."

Cargo Craft Now Missing Embassy Says

Military Ship Believed To Have Lost Its Way

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Nov. 20 (AP)—A United States military plane carrying diplomatic cargo and four crewmen was fired upon by Hungarian and Romanian border guards Monday and is now missing, the American Embassy announced tonight.

Sketchy details from Yugoslav sources suggested the plane had been from 40 to 200 miles off its scheduled course to Belgrade from Erding air base near Munich, Germany.

No Damage Reported

Reports from the pilot, as disclosed by the embassy, made no mention of damage from the shooting.

A day-long search was carried on today by British, American and Italian planes along Italy's Adriatic coast from an air base at Treviso, Italy, and will be extended into Northern Yugoslavia tomorrow.

The embassy said it was believed the missing crewmen became lost and mistook the Drava River, flowing close to the Hungarian and Romanian borders, for the Sava which marks the air corridor to Belgrade. Both rivers are tributaries of the Danube. The Drava runs 40 miles east of the Sava's course.

The U. S. Air Force announced early today that the plane, a two-engined C-47 transport, left Erding airbase yesterday morning with freight and supplies for the American Embassy here.

It had eight hours supply of gasoline and was last heard from at 4:16 p. m. (10:16 a. m. Eastern Standard Time)—nearly eight hours after its departure.

At that time the pilot messaged: "low on fuel. Not sure I can make Venice or emergency landing."

The plane was scheduled to fly over Innsbruck in Western Austria to Venice, thence east to Zagreb and down the Sava to Belgrade.

The Embassy statement said the plane was sighted entering Yugoslavia from the direction of Udine and near Ljubljana, on the Sava in northern Yugoslavia.

"The plane, according to Yugoslav sources, reported itself over Zagreb when actually it was over Varazdin (40 miles to the north-east of Zagreb and on the Drava)," the Embassy statement said "it is believed the pilot mistook the Drava River for the Sava River."

Pilot Turned Back

The Embassy said the transport later was sighted north of Viroitica, 60 miles southeast of Varazdin and only about 10 miles from the Hungarian border. Later it was seen near Beli Manastir, about 75 miles farther east and about the same distance from the Hungarian line as Virovitica.

It finally was traced as far east as Jasa Tomic, about 50 miles north-east of Belgrade on the Romanian border.

"It was fired upon by Hungarian border guards, according to a report from the pilot," the Embassy statement said. "It finally went as far as Jasa Tomic, where it was fired upon by the Romanian border guards."

The embassy said it was believed the pilot then realized the plane was off course and turned about. In two later reports he said he was near Zagreb and then west of Zagreb, headed towards Udine in Italy.

Bogus Surgeon Faces Discharge

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 20 (INS)—The fantastic story of a Massachusetts man who performed successfully several intricate battlefield operations in Korea while posing as a surgeon was unfolded today by the Royal Canadian Navy.

The RCN announced that the imposter—Ferdinand Waldo Demara, Jr., of Lawrence, Mass.—will be discharged for fraud and will not be court-martialed for masquerading as Lt. Joseph C. Cyr, a surgeon.

Demara's medical experience was limited to only a few months' service as an orderly in a Boston infirmary.

Contacted in Esquimalt, B. C., after he was sent home from Korea, he told interviewers, "the navy has told me to say nothing about it."

In Grand Falls, Nebraska, the genuine Dr. Joseph Cyr revealed that he once knew Demara, who was then a lay brother—Brother John of the Christian Brothers teaching order.

Cyr reported that his birth certificate and medical degree had disappeared and that Demara apparently took possession of them and used them to join the Canadian Navy.

5-Year-Old Child Saved From Fire

BALTIMORE, Nov. 20 (AP)—Firemen today saved a 5-year-old unconscious girl from a burning house.

Arriving at the blazing structure, firemen were told by neighbors that a girl was trapped on the second floor. Francis Ford went up a ladder and into a bedroom under the protection of a spray of water. He found Suzanne Bidlack passed out on the floor and carried her to safety.

The child was given artificial respiration on the scene and taken to a hospital for treatment of smoke inhalation.

Eight persons, including five other children, evacuated the burning house.

Adopted Okinawa Boy, 14, Begins A New Life In U. S.

WILLIAMS AIR FORCE BASE, Ariz., Nov. 20 (AP)—A husky, shy 14-year old boy embarked today on another of his great adventures.

To most lads, enrolling in a new school would be far out of the adventure class, but not to Taro, the adopted son of Capt. and Mrs. Ray L. Begeman.

It took a special act of Congress to get Taro into the United States from his native Okinawa, where as a war-orphaned eight-year-old he chummed around with the fighter plane captain.

An airsick Taro arrived in the U. S. just last week to be greeted by his parents and to fly here for a meeting with his two foster sisters, Karen Leigh, 20 months, and Kio Lin, six months. Both were born since the Begeman's left Okinawa.

They named their second daughter after Taro's sister, who was killed in World War II. The boy's mother disappeared in 1940 and his father was killed in 1945.

In good English Taro can tell you his ambition. "I want to go to college.

Capt. Begeman believes his son resembles the average boy except for one thing. His favorite vegetable is spinach.

Taro is starting school at Williams Field elementary and there'll be plenty of adjustments for the boy who has only finished five grades in an Okinawa island native school.

But Captain Begeman, who for 27 months spent one hour each day tutoring Taro in English and other subjects, figures he can start at about sixth grade with special help in unfamiliar courses.

The boy is gradually overcoming his shyness at seeing the Begemans after being separated from them for three years. During this time the officer waded through red tape to circumvent the Oriental Exclusion Act of 1924. That was finally done when President Truman signed private law 39 — Taro's admission slip.

Cover Model Dies

ARLINGTON, Vt., Nov. 20 (AP)—The Saturday Evening Post came out today with a Thanksgiving cover by Arlington artist Norman Rockwell — but the woman who posed for it last summer died just five days too early to see it.

She was Mrs. May Cooledge Walker, 67-year-old Arlington widow, who died last Thursday.

Franchot Tone To Seek Divorce

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 20 (AP) — Franchot Tone, who lost THAT fight but won THAT girl, today decided to give her up—apparently because she couldn't forget the other man.

Tone filed a divorce suit charging his wife of 53 days, blonde Barbara Payton with extreme mental cruelty. Henry Herzbrun, one of the actor's attorneys, said the breaking point came when Barbara told Tone she contemplated making a picture with Tom Neal — the man whose fists sent Tone to the hospital Sept. 14.

The 46-year-old actor beat his wife to the punch by filing his complaint first. Miss Payton's attorney, Robert S. Feder, said he was drawing up an action for her.

Feder indicated her complaint might be filed later today. Her charge also would be mental cruelty, he said, and she would not ask for alimony.

In his suit, Tone said there was no community property and offered no settlement. The couple had been living since their Sept. 29 marriage in Miss Payton's apartment, scene of the Tone-Neal battle.

Mother "Improves"

CENTRALIA, Ill., Nov. 20 (AP)—Mrs. Harlan Fry, 20, who gave birth to a premature baby by Caesarean section Saturday after doctors said she had little chance to recover from a brain tumor, today was reported to be in "better" condition. She was still listed as critical.

The condition of the four pound nine ounce boy was reported good.

Turkey Goes Up

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (AP)—The makings for a Thanksgiving turkey dinner for four will cost about $6.16 in Washington, up 34 cents from 1950, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported today.

An airsick Taro arrived in the U. S. just last week to be greeted by his parents and to fly here for a meeting with his two foster sisters, Karen Leigh, 20 months, and Kio Lin, six months. Both were born since the Begeman's left Okinawa.

They named their second daughter after Taro's sister, who was killed in World War II. The boy's mother disappeared in 1940 and his father was killed in 1945.

In good English Taro can tell you his ambition. "I want to go to college.

Capt. Begeman believes his son resembles the average boy except for one thing. His favorite vegetable is spinach.

Taro is starting school at Williams Field elementary and there'll be plenty of adjustments for the boy who has only finished five grades in an Okinawa island native school.

But Captain Begeman, who for 27 months spent one hour each day tutoring Taro in English and other subjects, figures he can start at about sixth grade with special help in unfamiliar courses.

The boy is gradually overcoming his shyness at seeing the Begemans after being separated from them for three years. During this time the officer waded through red tape to circumvent the Oriental Exclusion Act of 1924. That was finally done when President Truman signed private law 39 — Taro's admission slip.

Cover Model Dies

ARLINGTON, Vt., Nov. 20 (AP)—The Saturday Evening Post came out today with a Thanksgiving cover by Arlington artist Norman Rockwell — but the woman who posed for it last summer died just five days too early to see it.

She was Mrs. May Cooledge Walker, 67-year-old Arlington widow, who died last Thursday.

Franchot Tone To Seek Divorce

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 20 (AP) — Franchot Tone, who lost THAT fight but won THAT girl, today decided to give her up—apparently because she couldn't forget the other man.

Tone filed a divorce suit charging his wife of 53 days, blonde Barbara Payton with extreme mental cruelty. Henry Herzbrun, one of the actor's attorneys, said the breaking point came when Barbara told Tone she contemplated making a picture with Tom Neal — the man whose fists sent Tone to the hospital Sept. 14.

The 46-year-old actor beat his wife to the punch by filing his complaint first. Miss Payton's attorney, Robert S. Feder, said he was drawing up an action for her.

Feder indicated her complaint might be filed later today. Her charge also would be mental cruelty, he said, and she would not ask for alimony.

In his suit, Tone said there was no community property and offered no settlement. The couple had been living since their Sept. 29 marriage in Miss Payton's apartment, scene of the Tone-Neal battle.

Mother "Improves"

CENTRALIA, Ill., Nov. 20 (AP)—Mrs. Harlan Fry, 20, who gave birth to a premature baby by Caesarean section Saturday after doctors said she had little chance to recover from a brain tumor, today was reported to be in "better" condition. She was still listed as critical.

The condition of the four pound nine ounce boy was reported good.

Turkey Goes Up

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (AP)—The makings for a Thanksgiving turkey dinner for four will cost about $6.16 in Washington, up 34 cents from 1950, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported today.

Will Sterling Area Survive?

British Prime Minister Churchill and Exchequer Chancellor Butler, in announcing new restrictions on imports into Great Britain, have warned of a financial crisis confronting the whole sterling area as well as Britain. Butler told the House of Commons recently that the area as a whole was running an unfavorabe balance of trade with the dollar countries, that its gold and dollar reserves were "being drained away very fast," and that a "weakening of confidence in sterling" was to be found "throughout the world."

In September, 1949, when the Labor government devalued the pound from $4.07 to $2.80, the Brtish financial plight was almost entirely a dollar shortage affair. Now the British must meet also a trade deficit with the world as a whole. Also, in 1949 other states in the sterling area cooperated in the pound devaluation by taking steps—such as restriction of their dollar purchases—which they are probably unable or unwilling to take today.

So some of the financial experts have been wondering, in print, whether what lies ahead isn't the virtual dissolution of the sterling area. This now comprises the United Kingdom, the British Dominions except Canada, the British colonies, and Eire, India, Pakistan, Iceland and Iraq.

These states, with certain exceptions, deposit their dollar and other non-sterling foreign exchange earnings in a common pool managed by the Bank of England, and they draw their non-sterling requirements out of that pool.

They are relatively free in transferring sterling balances among themselves, and are exempt from the new British import restrictions. But several, including Australia, have been taking financial action that indicates interest in being tied to the dollar rather than to the pound.

Stormy Weather

"Into each life some rain must fall, some days must be dark and dreary," wrote Longfellow in fatalistic vein. He obviously felt that if it rains, that isn't grounds for suing somebody.

But that was before the days when rainmaking became a profession. Today, New York City faces 169 claims by persons and communities asking the city fathers to pay them $2,138,510 for damage done by storms they say were caused by municipal rainmakers.

The city's reply is couched in language less poetic and no more platitudinous, but it does not differ essentially from Longfellow's philosophic comment. It says, in effect, that the wind still bloweth where it listeth, and that any connection between rainmaking experiments and torrential downpours is purely coincidental.

That is, rainmaking doesn't work—or, if it does, it doesn't work well enough so that claimants can prove that the particular rain which damaged their property was man-made, not heaven-sent.

One claimant cites damage allegedly caused by a storm last November 25, which nearly drowned his 120 mink. He is convinced no rain could be that mean unless some government had a hand in it. Other claimants say the same storm washed out bridges, ruined fall crops, and caused extensive damage to homes and roads.

But New York denies it. Its rainmakers never were that good, the city insists. In fact, the November 25 storms were the entirely natural result of an atmospheric disturbance that blew into New York from the Ohio Valley. It was quite a storm. Only now is New York beginning to realize what a storm it was.

Susie Passes

Meiling Soong Chiang's contribution to Sino-American understanding will probably long be subject to controversy, but as to one part of it there can be no doubt. That was the gift of two baby giant pandas to the Bronx Zoo in New York City. In starting the soft, furry bundles on their journey by land, sea and air from Chungking in late 1941, Mrs. Chiang Kai-shek expressed the hope that:

"Their playful antics will bring as much delight to American children as American friendship has brought to the people of China."

One of the pair succumbed in 1945, and now the survivor, Susie, has died. But in their brief lives these exotic creatures, described as "having the appearance of a bear, the face of an owl and the disposition of a kitten," have indeed given delight to a host of children. The gleeful laughter that has filled their inclosure has given ample evidence.

Chungking and the Northwestern Szechwan area in which agile tribesmen captured the young pandas have long since fallen into the hands of the Communists, and the likelihood of replacement is presently nil. Only two giant pandas of a number that have been brought to America's zoos are still alive, one in Chicago and the other in St. Louis.

One effect of the introduction of the giant panda to America, and perhaps the most lasting, is visible in nurseries throughout the land. Toy pandas have almost completely replaced the teddy bears that once enjoyed top popularity.

An Old Friend Returns

To most Americans it will be good news that the number of "family" doctors, as distinguished from specialists, is definitely on the increase. There are times, of course, when the job at hand can only be done by an expert in one particular medical field. But ever since the early '30s there has been a serious dearth of men willing to treat practically all ordinary diseases.

This "renaissance of the general practitioner" was described in detail at a three-day meeting of the New York Academy of General Practice—a meeting, incidentally, which was attended by more than 1,500 "family" physicians and the purpose of which was to brief them on the latest advances in diagnosis and therapy.

The chief speaker at one of the sessions was Dr. Wingate M. Johnson of the Department of Medicine of Wake Forest College, and he offered plenty of evidence to support the theory that general practice is back in the favor of present and prospective physicians.

During the past five years, for example, the number of medical school students preparing themselves to be general practitioners has grown amazingly. The internships in hospitals that are now open to them are likewise much greater than ever before. But the practical testimony on the subject is to be found in figures on doctors' incomes which have been compiled by the American Medical Association and the Department of Commerce.

According to this report, the difference in the net income of family doctors and specialists is levelling off. In 1929, specialists earned 250 per cent more than general practitioners, in 1949, only 70 per cent more.

How To Keep Well

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

The Antibiotic Question

What is the fate of our modern drugs? This is a good question because numerous changes have taken place since the antibiotics came into being. Many of our common germs are disappearing from their usual habitats and other species are taking their places. As a result, diseases that formerly were raw are replacing more conventional types.

One of the most frequently cited examples along this line is pneumonia. Prior to 1940, the pneumococcus was the usual culprit and we seldom heard of virus pneumonia. Now the situation is reversed and we may well wonder where the pneumococcus has gone. It is believed generally that the widespread use of penicillin and the sulfonamides has annihilated the species. When these drugs are used for treating a cold, for example, every pneumococcus in the nose and throat is eliminated. If this procedure is followed year after year, the pneumococcus faces extinction just like like other living organisms that are slaughtered in wholesale fashion.

This is not all, however. In the miscroscopic world, germs are constantly at war with one another for the survival of the fittest. The wonder drugs do not affect the virus, hence we are giving this species the break for which they have been waiting. Bacteria such as the staphylococci, steptococci, and pneumonococci kept down the virus population in the past but now they are able to grow like weeds. The outcome has been a marked increase in virus infections including pneumonia of this origin. This is one of the arguments against the indiscriminate use of a valuable weapon against disease.

In addition, in the last few years there has been more and more evidence that the staphylococcus is not taking this beating lying down. This pus forming germ has been building up a defense against penicillin and several strains are beginning to develop against which pinicillin has no effect. The organism is producing an enzyme, penicillinase, which nullifies the fighting power of the wonder drugs. This is more likely to occur if penicillin is not administered properly as when the dose is so small it merely stuns rather than wins a complete victory over the invader. Each time the organism is knocked down it rises stronger than ever. Moreover, it transmits this added potency to its offspring so that a race of super-streptococci gradually is coming into being.

The indiscriminate use of our modern antibiotics (aureomycin, chloromycetin, and terramycin) also is having repercussions. These drugs are eliminating many of the friendly intestinal bacteria and, as a result, various yeastlike organisms and fungi are taking over. This condition is of no concern at present but may be serious in the future. Some of these molds are harmless so long as they remain in the intestine but will create a problem if they extend into the lungs. These are, but a few of the problems that make us question the future of the antibiotics.

REPLY

This is an old stall that everyone uses who wants to start smoking again. Ask him to enumerate the benefits he ever obtained from the habit. By the end of two weeks the good effects should be apparent but meanwhile ex-smokers have difficulty overcoming other habits. They do not know what to do with their hands or how to act when they become embarrassed or upset or are under pressure. Months pass before this phase disappears because an entire change in mannerisms is necessary.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Candidate Taft Brags Has Corralled Over 600 Delegates; Midwest And New England Reports Encouraging; Senator Malone Reverses Himself On Tidelands.

WASHINGTON — At a relaxed Washington dinner at the Carlton Hotel recently, Sen. Robert Taft cheerfully bragged to close friends that his delegate strength was "way over 600 and going up."

The Senator had just come from a month of political bush-beating and a press conference where he was heckled for almost an hour. In high good humor, however, he told top aides Jack Martin and Lou Guylay: "This has been the most productive political month in my career. Everywhere I've been in the Midwest and South we are gaining strength. If the convention was today, I would get the nomination on the first ballot."

Guylay supplemented this by giving details on a Taft managers' report placing delegate strength at an all-time high of 600—enough to win on the first roll call. (At the 1948 convention, Taft never hit 300 votes).

Senator Taft listened, beamed, but commented: "After this trip, I would say our strength is way over 600 and still going up."

Taft's Line-Up

Reason for the optimism are the following reports sent in by Taft managers: Three Midwest states which turned their backs in 1948—Indiana, Kentucky and Wisconsin—are now on the Taft team . . . In Indiana, a Dewey state three years ago, National Committeeman Ralph Gates, the former governor; Ex-Senator Ray Willis, and 68 GOP members of the state legislature are on record for Taft . . . In Kentucky, National Committeeman Jouett Ross Todd, a Dewey man in 1948, is actively pushing Taft . . . In Wisconsin, Republican Boss Tom Coleman is lining up delegates. Coleman is Sen. Joe McCarthy's friend . . . In Illinois, Sen. Everett Dirksen has dropped "favorite son" ambitions to be Taft's manager. This means Illinois' 60 votes will probably go to Taft on the first ballot . . . In Pennsylvania, the three top-ranking GOP organization leaders were photographed with Taft at Harrisburg—State Chairman Harvey Taylor, National Committeeman Mason Owlett, and Sen. Edward Martin. The other Pennsylvania Senator, rugged, independent Jim Duff, is Eisenhower's biggest booster.

New England Trends

The same story of organization politicos, deserting the Eisenhower campaign to line up with Taft, is true in New England, Taft managers report. At the 1948 convention, Taft received only four votes from the whole area, now is making heavy inroads in Massachusetts, despite Sens. Leverett Saltonstall and Henry Cabot Lodge's preference for Ike. Taft's manager is the energetic New Bedford publisher, Basil Brewer, who figures the Ohioan will get at least eight Bay State delegates . . . In other New England states, Wiley Sen. Owen Brewster is trying to snatch the whole Maine delegation, but will have to overcome the prestige of Sen. Margaret Smith, who leans to Ike . . . Publisher William Loeb of the Manchester, N. H., Union-Leader, is battling for Taft against ailing Sen. Charles Tobey, while Sen. Styles Bridges sits on the fence . . . Vermont National Committeeman Jim Dewey, a cousin of Governor Dewey, is openly pro-Taft . . . In Rhode Island, Taft pulled a crowd of party leaders at a $50-a-plate dinner, and Ex-GOP National Committee Press Agent Jim Selvage is organizing for Taft in Connecticut.

Kansas Surprises

At the Carlton dinner the other night, Taft gleefully revealed two surprises. They were promises of strength from both Kansas, Ike's home state, and from New York, under the careful thumb of Governor Dewey. Publisher Frank Gannett is determined to break Dewey's hold by splitting the delegation for Taft. He has the undercover support of ten New York congressmen.

Taft did not reveal his contacts in Kansas, but did say that while visiting in Kansas City he had received definite pledges of support from key party leaders.

Taft lieutenants pooh-pooh claims that Eisenhower will puncture Taft's hold in the south. They say that, while the Senator will not go into California to oppose Gov. Earl Warren, he expects to break even or better in seven of the 11 Western states.

Nevada Friendships

The Senate is always quick to investigate anyone but its own members. However, one situation which badly needs investigating is the way Senator Malone, Nevada Republican, has reversed positions on Tidelands Oil.

At first, Malone fought to turn Tidelands Oil over to the states. This was at the same time that his assistant, Ben Whitehurst, wrote to the Long Beach Harbor Commissioners on Malone's official stationery, asking $50,000 to lobby for state ownership. However, the deal fell through.

Now Malone has completely reversed himself, and is battling for federal ownership. The position he now favors might help turn vast tracts of oil-rich tidelands over to E. L. Cord, the auto magnate, who bought up forgotten Civil War scrip which he claims entitled him to federally owned tidelands.

At the same time that Malone takes this position favoring Cord he has been flying around Nevada in Cord's private plane, and has been a house guest at Cord's Fish Lake Valley ranch in the Sierras.

In other words, Malone sided with the Long Beach Harbor Commissioners as long as his assistant was trying to get $50,000 from them. Then Malone suddenly switched to Cord's side, and is now accepting favors from Cord. The Senate is investigating Vice President Barkley's secretary for much less. But I predict the Senate will not investigate a fellow senator.

Backstage With The Diplomats

The ABN underground in Southern Russia claims three Soviet Republics, Kazakh, Uzbek and Turkomen, are boiling with revolt and vast purges. (ABN is an underground of Moslem and Mongolian groups in South and East Russia. Its headquarters is in Turkey). . . . A peasant revolt in all the European satellites has brought a shake-up in Communist agriculture ministries plus short rations . . . Argentina's anti-American Dictator Peron has just fired eight of his top generals, including General Solari, commander-in-chief of the army, and arrested Gen. Arturo Rawson, the former president. This is to prevent another military revolt following the abortive uprising on September 18. . . . The Iranian Shah has secretly conferred with a former premier noted for his Russian sympathies who may replace Premier Mossadegh. The pro-Russian is Qavam Al-Saltaneh, whose cabinet fell in 1947 when parliament rejected his agreements giving the Soviet big oil and border concessions . . . Two lieutenants of the wily Mufti of Jerusalem who worked for Hitler and now for Stalin are actively organizing terrorist gangs and an "Army of Liberation" for Egypt. They are not being deterred by the Egyptian government. The terrorists threaten to murder any Egyptian who works for the British in the Suez Canal Zone or elsewhere.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

The taxpayers of the nation can rest assured that they will not have any further increase in rates imposed upon them by Congress during 1952. This can be derived from a canvass of all the important authorities here who have anything to do with tax legislation.

Foremost among these, of course, are the chairmen of the House Ways and Means Committee and the Senate Finance Committee, but it is a fact that the Treasury Department itself does not expect any further legislation to increase taxes.

In referring to objectives of new legislation, the phrase that now is used "to improve" the tax structure. This means changes and revisions in the administrative sections of the law, and very often these adjustments result in increased revenue.

When it is stated flatly that the treasury does not expect any more increases in tax rates, this is to say that there will be no recommendations along that line. To keep the record straight, the President will ask for higher taxes. But Congress will pigeonhole the request because there is a virtually unanimous feeling in both political parties in Congress that the present tax rates have about reached the saturation point. Also, because Congress didn't enact the latest law with its rate changes to take effect for the full calendar year 1951, it is necessary to observe the operation of the new rates on the full calendar year of 1952 before making any further recommendations.

Revenue May Be Up

It could be that, with the armament boom, the 1952 tax collections will be higher than has been estimated, and hence the margin between reciepts and expenditures may be narrower than has heretofore been believed would be the case.

There is a school of thought on taxation, incidentally, which believes that the way to increase total receipts is to reduce rather than increase taxes in boom times. This theory holds that business improves when tax laws furnish less impediment and that many transactions which are held up because of high taxes would be consummated if lower rates prevailed. Thus any upward rise in capital-gains taxes has always been regarded as one to freeze real-estate transactions and cause prices to soar in order to leave a reasonable net for the seller after paying capital-gains taxes. To reduce capital-gains taxes is to stimulate business volume.

The general feeling in Congress against passing any further tax laws with higher rates happens to coincide with the fact that 1952 is a year in which a President and a new Congress are to be elected. The issue of high taxes will be discussed widely on the stump and nothing would contribute more to the nation-wide discontent than another tax bill superimposed on the present one, which has hardly been digested.

Change of Mind

Even Marriner S. Eccles, former chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, who has always advocated higher and higher taxes when needed to balance budgets, is quoted now as opposed to any rise in the tax rates. In his speech in New York he declared that the tax system "has been strained to the limit" and "if it is expanded any further, that will be the ruination of incentive."

It will be interesting to see whether the labor-union leaders will accept this approach or insist on higher taxes. If the labor-union group argues for higher taxes, it probably will be the only one that does take that view.

But if tax rates aren't increased and the Federal budget faces a big deficit, what will the government do? It cannot go on spending indefinitely with higher and higher deficits. The only course it can follow will be to reduce expenses. Representative Reed of New York, ranking Republican member of the House Ways and Means Committee, predicts that Congress at its next session will be more economy-minded than it has been in recent years. Apparently the day of decision on national policy as against further increases in tax rates and against mounting expenditures is not far away.

Strikes Against Defense

By MARK SULLIVAN

After the recent strike of longshoremen had been under way some ten days, President Truman took official notice of it. He said: "I have been informed by Mr. Charles E. Wilson, Director of the Office of Defense Mobilization, that because of the work stoppages by the longshoremen the ports of New York and Boston have been virtually paralyzed, and that equipment and material vitally needed for national defense is not moving . . . this work stoppage has a direct and immediate effect on our defense effort."

Now the human heart and body of the "defense effort" Mr. Truman mentions is the men in the armed forces who bear the brunt of it. The numbers and locations of them are withheld by the Defense Department, quite properly. It can be assumed there are some hundred thousand fighting in Korea and some hundred thousand in Western Europe in readiness for fighting if it should come. There are several hundred thousand in camps in the United States where they are being trained for fighting. The total must be approximately 3,000,000.

Mr. Truman delivers an official statement which makes these men aware of a seriously disquieting condition. They learn that the arms and equipment they need for fighting can be reduced in quantity and shipment of it to them interrupted when a labor leader chooses to bring about a strike. They are informed further about a step taken by a minor administration agency. Mr. Truman says, "the director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service has reported to me that the service has been unable to bring about a resumption of work and that all mediation efforts have been exhausted."

Truman's Attitude

The men in the armed forces learn Mr. Truman's attitude toward the strikers. His words were no more than a mild admonition, "in the national interest the employes involved in this critical work stoppage should return to work at once." The men in the forces might reasonably feel that Mr. Truman should have been sterner, that admonition was not enough, that action was called for. They could hardly fail to remember the Army discipline of which Mr. Truman as Commander-in-Chief is the symbol and final authority. Nor could they fail to reflect on the central fact, that shipment of the material and equipment they need for fighting is interrupted or reduced.

The passages here quoted compose substantially the whole of Mr. Truman's official statement. Throughout, it has an atmosphere of reluctance to take responsibility; he seems to take care to base what he says on information received from others, the Director of Defense Mobilization and the director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service. Unwillingness to act is inherent and reluctance even to speak is suggested by the mildness of his admonition and by his use of the term "work stoppage" instead of "strike."

More Labor Trouble

Conspicuously and with disquieting significance Mr. Truman confines what he says to this one strike. And neither here nor elsewhere does he deal as a whole with the broad condition which the New York Herald Tribune aptly described as "strikes against defense." Of these there have been many throughout the whole defense period that began with the outbreak in Korea seventeen months ago — several strikes that interrupted production of planes especially needed in Korea; strikes that interrupted production of copper, a metal especially vital in the production of war material; strikes that interrupted or handicapped railroad transportation. There have been strikes in most of the important industries that produce war material. Some strikes are under way now and others are threatened. Possibility of a strike is at least inherent in the negotiations about to begin between heads of the steel industry and the United Steel Workers of America C.I.O.

If there should be a serious reduction of steel output, the effect on production of materials for war would be so serious that President Truman would be obliged to take account of it with a forthrightness and comprehensiveness which he now seems reluctant to exercise. The politics associated with the President's attitude is complex. In his 1948 campaign for the Presidency he frankly sought the support of labor and to a considerable extent got it. His principal appeal was a denunciation of the existing labor relations law, the Taft-Hartley Act, largely on the ground that it put undue restraint on labor leaders and unions. But the present attitude of important labor leaders is far from gratitude, it is rather one of bullying. In this respect as in others Mr. Truman seems experiencing consequences of a past he in large part created himself.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Thanksgiving 1951

The pause that comes with any holiday can, with advantage, be a moment for self-examination. Thanksgiving Day, in particular, lends itself to that purpose. Otherwise, each day is like the day before a rhythmic motion from darkness to light and then to darkness again—and nothing more.

Our Thanksgiving holiday is strictly American. It is unrelated to politics, as is the Fourth of July, or to a religious order, as is Easter. It exists by Presidential proclamation. Yet, few documents ordering the event grasp at its essential purpose. The noblest of these proclamations was Abraham Lincoln's of March 30, 1863, in which he said:

"Whereas it is the duty of nations as well as of men to own their dependence upon the overruling power of God, to confess their sins and transgressions in humble sorrow, yet with assured hope that genuine repentance will lead to mercy and pardon, and to recognize the sublime truth, announced in the Holy Scriptures and proven by all history, that those nations only are blessed whose God is the Lord; . . .

". . . We have been the recipients of the choicest bounties of Heaven; we have been preserved these many years in peace and prosperity; we have grown in numbers, wealth, and power as no other nation has ever grown. But we have forgotten God. We have forgotten the gracious hand which preserved us in peace and multiplied and enriched and strengthened us, and we have vainly imagined, in the deceitfulness of our hearts, that all these blessings were produced by some superior wisdom and virtue of our own. Intoxicated with unbroken success, we have become too self-sufficient to feel the necessity of redeeming and preserving grace, too proud to pray to the God that made us."

This Thanksgiving proclamation, in nobility of expression, in depth of sentiment, in understanding of the religious motivation of our civilization is as magnificent as the Gettysburg address. It is a demonstrable fact in history that no civilization has blossomed or long existed, the roots of which are not deep in religious belief and experience.

To assume that Thanksgiving Day is a pause from work, accompanied by the feast of the turkey and pumpkin pie, is to give to Bacchus a day dedicated to God.

There was a time in our land when such a festival was inaugurated with prayer at the family table, when children were taught to realize that the richness of our lives comes from God. Today, too many children must assume that it comes from the breaks that father got, or from the bounty of government, or from the politicians who have set themselves up as feudal lords mailing government checks to their beneficiaries.

Men who thank God for their bread are independent of other men. They raise their eyes heavenward and know the truth. They do not live in fear of man, or government, or power. They know that all men are created to be equal in the eyes of the Lord and when they have returned to that permanent state in which dust is dust, only that remains of them which is eternal, the soul, the holy spirit that is life.

In these troubled times, the thought must come to many: What have I to be thankful for?

Surely, it cannot be for wealth, for automobiles and electrical refrigerators and television sets. For if we had none of these, there still would be much to be thankful for.

We need to be thankful for life itself.

We need to be thankful that our lovely land has not been invaded by a foreign foe, that our cities have not ben devastated, that our infants have not been slaughtered by the savagery of wild races emerging to power.

We need to be thankful that, for most of us, sons outlive their fathers, and in those homes that are tortured by the nearness of war tragedy, they know that none take lightly their misfortunes and that we join in their sorrows as though they were our own.

We need to be thankful that we have been chosen from among the nations to lead mankind to a peaceful world. Recognizing our own weaknesses and the frailties of those who lead us, we fear the weight of such responsibility and humbly pray that we may not do more harm than good. But we know that whatever we do is in kindliness and not to harm, to conquer, to enslave.

May God bless this Day of Thanksgiving.

Will Sterling Area Survive?

British Prime Minister Churchill and Exchequer Chancellor Butler, in announcing new restrictions on imports into Great Britain, have warned of a financial crisis confronting the whole sterling area as well as Britain. Butler told the House of Commons recently that the area as a whole was running an unfavorabe balance of trade with the dollar countries, that its gold and dollar reserves were "being drained away very fast," and that a "weakening of confidence in sterling" was to be found "throughout the world."

In September, 1949, when the Labor government devalued the pound from $4.07 to $2.80, the Brtish financial plight was almost entirely a dollar shortage affair. Now the British must meet also a trade deficit with the world as a whole. Also, in 1949 other states in the sterling area cooperated in the pound devaluation by taking steps—such as restriction of their dollar purchases—which they are probably unable or unwilling to take today.

So some of the financial experts have been wondering, in print, whether what lies ahead isn't the virtual dissolution of the sterling area. This now comprises the United Kingdom, the British Dominions except Canada, the British colonies, and Eire, India, Pakistan, Iceland and Iraq.

These states, with certain exceptions, deposit their dollar and other non-sterling foreign exchange earnings in a common pool managed by the Bank of England, and they draw their non-sterling requirements out of that pool.

They are relatively free in transferring sterling balances among themselves, and are exempt from the new British import restrictions. But several, including Australia, have been taking financial action that indicates interest in being tied to the dollar rather than to the pound.

Stormy Weather

"Into each life some rain must fall, some days must be dark and dreary," wrote Longfellow in fatalistic vein. He obviously felt that if it rains, that isn't grounds for suing somebody.

But that was before the days when rainmaking became a profession. Today, New York City faces 169 claims by persons and communities asking the city fathers to pay them $2,138,510 for damage done by storms they say were caused by municipal rainmakers.

The city's reply is couched in language less poetic and no more platitudinous, but it does not differ essentially from Longfellow's philosophic comment. It says, in effect, that the wind still bloweth where it listeth, and that any connection between rainmaking experiments and torrential downpours is purely coincidental.

That is, rainmaking doesn't work—or, if it does, it doesn't work well enough so that claimants can prove that the particular rain which damaged their property was man-made, not heaven-sent.

One claimant cites damage allegedly caused by a storm last November 25, which nearly drowned his 120 mink. He is convinced no rain could be that mean unless some government had a hand in it. Other claimants say the same storm washed out bridges, ruined fall crops, and caused extensive damage to homes and roads.

But New York denies it. Its rainmakers never were that good, the city insists. In fact, the November 25 storms were the entirely natural result of an atmospheric disturbance that blew into New York from the Ohio Valley. It was quite a storm. Only now is New York beginning to realize what a storm it was.

Susie Passes

Meiling Soong Chiang's contribution to Sino-American understanding will probably long be subject to controversy, but as to one part of it there can be no doubt. That was the gift of two baby giant pandas to the Bronx Zoo in New York City. In starting the soft, furry bundles on their journey by land, sea and air from Chungking in late 1941, Mrs. Chiang Kai-shek expressed the hope that:

"Their playful antics will bring as much delight to American children as American friendship has brought to the people of China."

One of the pair succumbed in 1945, and now the survivor, Susie, has died. But in their brief lives these exotic creatures, described as "having the appearance of a bear, the face of an owl and the disposition of a kitten," have indeed given delight to a host of children. The gleeful laughter that has filled their inclosure has given ample evidence.

Chungking and the Northwestern Szechwan area in which agile tribesmen captured the young pandas have long since fallen into the hands of the Communists, and the likelihood of replacement is presently nil. Only two giant pandas of a number that have been brought to America's zoos are still alive, one in Chicago and the other in St. Louis.

One effect of the introduction of the giant panda to America, and perhaps the most lasting, is visible in nurseries throughout the land. Toy pandas have almost completely replaced the teddy bears that once enjoyed top popularity.

An Old Friend Returns

To most Americans it will be good news that the number of "family" doctors, as distinguished from specialists, is definitely on the increase. There are times, of course, when the job at hand can only be done by an expert in one particular medical field. But ever since the early '30s there has been a serious dearth of men willing to treat practically all ordinary diseases.

This "renaissance of the general practitioner" was described in detail at a three-day meeting of the New York Academy of General Practice—a meeting, incidentally, which was attended by more than 1,500 "family" physicians and the purpose of which was to brief them on the latest advances in diagnosis and therapy.

The chief speaker at one of the sessions was Dr. Wingate M. Johnson of the Department of Medicine of Wake Forest College, and he offered plenty of evidence to support the theory that general practice is back in the favor of present and prospective physicians.

During the past five years, for example, the number of medical school students preparing themselves to be general practitioners has grown amazingly. The internships in hospitals that are now open to them are likewise much greater than ever before. But the practical testimony on the subject is to be found in figures on doctors' incomes which have been compiled by the American Medical Association and the Department of Commerce.

According to this report, the difference in the net income of family doctors and specialists is levelling off. In 1929, specialists earned 250 per cent more than general practitioners, in 1949, only 70 per cent more.

How To Keep Well

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

The Antibiotic Question

What is the fate of our modern drugs? This is a good question because numerous changes have taken place since the antibiotics came into being. Many of our common germs are disappearing from their usual habitats and other species are taking their places. As a result, diseases that formerly were raw are replacing more conventional types.

One of the most frequently cited examples along this line is pneumonia. Prior to 1940, the pneumococcus was the usual culprit and we seldom heard of virus pneumonia. Now the situation is reversed and we may well wonder where the pneumococcus has gone. It is believed generally that the widespread use of penicillin and the sulfonamides has annihilated the species. When these drugs are used for treating a cold, for example, every pneumococcus in the nose and throat is eliminated. If this procedure is followed year after year, the pneumococcus faces extinction just like like other living organisms that are slaughtered in wholesale fashion.

This is not all, however. In the miscroscopic world, germs are constantly at war with one another for the survival of the fittest. The wonder drugs do not affect the virus, hence we are giving this species the break for which they have been waiting. Bacteria such as the staphylococci, steptococci, and pneumonococci kept down the virus population in the past but now they are able to grow like weeds. The outcome has been a marked increase in virus infections including pneumonia of this origin. This is one of the arguments against the indiscriminate use of a valuable weapon against disease.

In addition, in the last few years there has been more and more evidence that the staphylococcus is not taking this beating lying down. This pus forming germ has been building up a defense against penicillin and several strains are beginning to develop against which pinicillin has no effect. The organism is producing an enzyme, penicillinase, which nullifies the fighting power of the wonder drugs. This is more likely to occur if penicillin is not administered properly as when the dose is so small it merely stuns rather than wins a complete victory over the invader. Each time the organism is knocked down it rises stronger than ever. Moreover, it transmits this added potency to its offspring so that a race of super-streptococci gradually is coming into being.

The indiscriminate use of our modern antibiotics (aureomycin, chloromycetin, and terramycin) also is having repercussions. These drugs are eliminating many of the friendly intestinal bacteria and, as a result, various yeastlike organisms and fungi are taking over. This condition is of no concern at present but may be serious in the future. Some of these molds are harmless so long as they remain in the intestine but will create a problem if they extend into the lungs. These are but a few of the problems that make us question the future of the antibiotics.

This is an old stall that everyone uses who wants to start smoking again. Ask him to enumerate the benefits he ever obtained from the habit. By the end of two weeks the good effects should be apparent but meanwhile ex-smokers have difficulty overcoming other habits. They do not know what to do with their hands or how to act when they become embarrassed or upset or are under pressure. Months pass before this phase disappears because an entire change in mannerisms is necessary.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Candidate Taft Brags Has Corralled Over 600 Delegates; Midwest And New England Reports Encouraging; Senator Malone Reverses Himself On Tidelands.

WASHINGTON — At a relaxed Washington dinner at the Carlton Hotel recently, Sen. Robert Taft cheerfully bragged to close friends that his delegate strength was "way over 600 and going up."

The Senator had just come from a month of political bush-beating and a press conference where he was heckled for almost an hour. In high good humor, however, he told top aides Jack Martin and Lou Guylay: "This has been the most productive political month in my career. Everywhere I've been in the Midwest and South we are gaining strength. If the convention was today, I would get the nomination on the first ballot."

Guylay supplemented this by giving details on a Taft managers' report placing delegate strength at an all-time high of 600—enough to win on the first roll call. (At the 1948 convention, Taft never hit 300 votes).

Senator Taft listened, beamed, but commented: "After this trip, I would say our strength is way over 600 and still going up."

Taft's Line-Up

Reason for the optimism are the following reports sent in by Taft managers: Three Midwest states which turned their backs in 1948—Indiana, Kentucky and Wisconsin—are now on the Taft team . . . In Indiana, a Dewey state three years ago, National Committeeman Ralph Gates, the former governor; Ex-Senator Ray Willis, and 68 GOP members of the state legislature are on record for Taft . . . In Kentucky, National Committeeman Jouett Ross Todd, a Dewey man in 1948, is actively pushing Taft . . . In Wisconsin, Republican Boss Tom Coleman is lining up delegates. Coleman is Sen. Joe McCarthy's friend . . . In Illinois, Sen. Everett Dirksen has dropped "favorite son" ambitions to be Taft's manager. This means Illinois' 60 votes will probably go to Taft on the first ballot . . . In Pennsylvania, the three top-ranking GOP organization leaders were photographed with Taft at Harrisburg—State Chairman Harvey Taylor, National Committeeman Mason Owlett, and Sen. Edward Martin. The other Pennsylvania Senator, rugged, independent Jim Duff, is Eisenhower's biggest booster.

New England Trends

The same story of organization politicos, deserting the Eisenhower campaign to line up with Taft, is true in New England, Taft managers report. At the 1948 convention, Taft received only four votes from the whole area, now is making heavy inroads in Massachusetts, despite Sens. Leverett Saltonstall and Henry Cabot Lodge's preference for Ike. Taft's manager is the energetic New Bedford publisher, Basil Brewer, who figures the Ohioan will get at least eight Bay State delegates . . . In other New England states, Wiley Sen. Owen Brewster is trying to snatch the whole Maine delegation, but will have to overcome the prestige of Sen. Margaret Smith, who leans to Ike . . . Publisher William Loeb of the Manchester, N. H., Union-Leader, is battling for Taft against ailing Sen. Charles Tobey, while Sen. Styles Bridges sits on the fence . . . Vermont National Committeeman Jim Dewey, a cousin of Governor Dewey, is openly pro-Taft . . . In Rhode Island, Taft pulled a crowd of party leaders at a $50-a-plate dinner, and Ex-GOP National Committee Press Agent Jim Selvage is organizing for Taft in Connecticut.

Kansas Surprises

At the Carlton dinner the other night, Taft gleefully revealed two surprises. They were promises of strength from both Kansas, Ike's home state, and from New York, under the careful thumb of Governor Dewey. Publisher Frank Gannett is determined to break Dewey's hold by splitting the delegation for Taft. He has the undercover support of ten New York congressmen.

Taft did not reveal his contacts in Kansas, but did say that while visiting in Kansas City he had received definite pledges of support from key party leaders.

Taft lieutenants pooh-poohed claims that Eisenhower will puncture Taft's hold in the south. They say that, while the Senator will not go into California to oppose Gov. Earl Warren, he expects to break even or better in seven of the 11 Western states.

Nevada Friendships

The Senate is always quick to investigate anyone but its own members. However, one situation which badly needs investigating is the way Senator Malone, Nevada Republican, has reversed positions on Tidelands Oil.

At first, Malone fought to turn Tidelands Oil over to the states. This was at the same time that his assistant, Ben Whitehurst, wrote to the Long Beach Harbor Commissioners on Malone's official stationery, asking $50,000 to lobby for state ownership. However, the deal fell through.

Now Malone has completely reversed himself, and is battling for federal ownership. The position he now favors might help turn vast tracts of oil-rich tidelands over to E. L. Cord, the auto magnate, who bought up forgotten Civil War scrip which he claims entitled him to federally owned tidelands.

At the same time that Malone takes this position favoring Cord he has been flying around Nevada in Cord's private plane, and has been a house guest at Cord's Fish Lake Valley ranch in the Sierras.

In other words, Malone sided with the Long Beach Harbor Commissioners as long as his assistant was trying to get $50,000 from them. Then Malone suddenly switched to Cord's side, and is now accepting favors from Cord. The Senate is investigating Vice President Barkley's secretary for much less. But I predict the Senate will not investigate a fellow senator.

Backstage With The Diplomats

The ABN underground in Southern Russia claims three Soviet Republics, Kazakh, Uzbek and Turkomen, are boiling with revolt and vast purges. (ABN is an underground of Moslem and Mongolian groups in South and East Russia. Its headquarters is in Turkey). . . . A peasant revolt in all the European satellites has brought a shake-up in Communist agriculture ministries plus short rations . . . Argentina's anti-American Dictator Peron has just fired eight of his top generals, including General Solari, commander-in-chief of the army, and arrested Gen. Arturo Rawson, the former president. This is to prevent another military revolt following the abortive uprising on September 18. . . . The Iranian Shah has secretly conferred with a former premier noted for his Russian sympathies who may replace Premier Mossadegh. The pro-Russian is Qavam Al-Saltaneh, whose cabinet fell in 1947 when parliament rejected his agreements giving the Soviet big oil and border concessions . . . Two lieutenants of the wily Mufti of Jerusalem who worked for Hitler and now for Stalin are actively organizing terrorist gangs and an "Army of Liberation" for Egypt. They are not being deterred by the Egyptian government. The terrorists threaten to murder any Egyptian who works for the British in the Suez Canal Zone or elsewhere.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

The taxpayers of the nation can rest assured that they will not have any further increase in rates imposed upon them by Congress during 1952. This can be derived from a canvass of all the important authorities here who have anything to do with tax legislation.

Foremost among these, of course, are the chairmen of the House Ways and Means Committee and the Senate Finance Committee, but it is a fact that the Treasury Department itself does not expect any further legislation to increase taxes.

In referring to objectives of new legislation, the phrase that now is used "to improve" the tax structure. This means changes and revisions in the administrative sections of the law, and very often these adjustments result in increased revenue.

When it is stated flatly that the treasury does not expect any more increases in tax rates, this is to say that there will be no recommendations along that line. To keep the record straight, the President will ask for higher taxes. But Congress will pigeonhole the request because there is a virtually unanimous feeling in both political parties in Congress that the present tax rates have about reached the saturation point. Also, because Congress didn't enact the latest law with its rate changes to take effect for the full calendar year 1951, it is necessary to observe the operation of the new rates on the full calendar year of 1952 before making any further recommendations.

Revenue May Be Up

It could be that, with the armament boom, the 1952 tax collections will be higher than has been estimated, and hence the margin between reciepts and expenditures may be narrower than has heretofore been believed would be the case.

There is a school of thought on taxation, incidentally, which believes that the way to increase total receipts is to reduce rather than increase taxes in boom times. This theory holds that business improves when tax laws furnish less impediment and that many transactions which are held up because of high taxes would be consummated if lower rates prevailed. Thus any upward rise in capital-gains taxes has always been regarded as one to freeze real-estate transactions and cause prices to soar in order to leave a reasonable net for the seller after paying capital-gains taxes. To reduce capital-gains taxes is to stimulate business volume.

The general feeling in Congress against passing any further tax laws with higher rates happens to coincide with the fact that 1952 is a year in which a President and a new Congress are to be elected. The issue of high taxes will be discussed widely on the stump and nothing would contribute more to the nation-wide discontent than another tax bill superimposed on the present one, which has hardly been digested.

Change of Mind

Even Marriner S. Eccles, former chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, who has always advocated higher and higher taxes when needed to balance budgets, is quoted now as opposed to any rise in the tax rates. In his speech in New York he declared that the tax system "has been strained to the limit" and "if it is expanded any further, that will be the ruination of incentive."

It will be interesting to see whether the labor-union leaders will accept this approach or insist on higher taxes. If the labor-union group argues for higher taxes, it probably will be the only one that does take that view.

But if tax rates aren't increased and the Federal budget faces a big deficit, what will the government do? It cannot go on spending indefinitely with higher and higher deficits. The only course it can follow will be to reduce expenses. Representative Reed of New York, ranking Republican member of the House Ways and Means Committee, predicts that Congress at its next session will be more economy-minded than it has been in recent years. Apparently the day of decision on national policy as against further increases in tax rates and against mounting expenditures is not far away.

Strikes Against Defense

By MARK SULLIVAN

After the recent strike of longshoremen had been under way some ten days, President Truman took official notice of it. He said: "I have been informed by Mr. Charles E. Wilson, Director of the Office of Defense Mobilization, that because of the work stoppages by the longshoremen the ports of New York and Boston have been virtually paralyzed, and that equipment and material vitally needed for national defense is not moving . . . this work stoppage has a direct and immediate effect on our defense effort."

Now the human heart and body of the "defense effort" Mr. Truman mentions is the men in the armed forces who bear the brunt of it. The numbers and locations of them are withheld by the Defense Department, quite properly. It can be assumed there are some hundred thousand fighting in Korea and some hundred thousand in Western Europe in readiness for fighting if it should come. There are several hundred thousand in camps in the United States where they are being trained for fighting. The total must be approximately 3,000,000.

Mr. Truman delivers an official statement which makes these men aware of a seriously disquieting condition. They learn that the arms and equipment they need for fighting can be reduced in quantity and shipment of it to them interrupted when a labor leader chooses to bring about a strike. They are informed further about a step taken by a minor administration agency. Mr. Truman says, "the director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service has reported to me that the service has been unable to bring about a resumption of work and that all mediation efforts have been exhausted."

Truman's Attitude

The men in the armed forces learn Mr. Truman's attitude toward the strikers. His words were no more than a mild admonition, "in the national interest the employes involved in this critical work stoppage should return to work at once." The men in the forces might reasonably feel that Mr. Truman should have been sterner, that admonition was not enough, that action was called for. They could hardly fail to remember the Army discipline of which Mr. Truman as Commander-in-Chief is the symbol and final authority. Nor could they fail to reflect on the central fact, that shipment of the material and equipment they need for fighting is interrupted or reduced.

The passages here quoted compose substantially the whole of Mr. Truman's official statement. Throughout, it has an atmosphere of reluctance to take responsibility; he seems to take care to base what he says on information received from others, the Director of Defense Mobilization and the director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service. Unwillingness to act is inherent and reluctance even to speak is suggested by the mildness of his admonition and by his use of the term "work stoppage" instead of "strike."

More Labor Trouble

Conspicuously and with disquieting significance Mr. Truman confines what he says to this one strike. And neither here nor elsewhere does he deal as a whole with the broad condition which the New York Herald Tribune aptly described as "strikes against defense." Of these there have been many throughout the whole defense period that began with the outbreak in Korea seventeen months ago — several strikes that interrupted production of planes especially needed in Korea; strikes that interrupted production of copper, a metal especially vital in the production of war material; strikes that interrupted or handicapped railroad transportation. There have been strikes in most of the important industries that produce war material. Some strikes are under way now and others are threatened. Possibility of a strike is at least inherent in the negotiations about to begin between heads of the steel industry and the United Steel Workers of America C.I.O.

If there should be a serious reduction of steel output, the effect on production of materials for war would be so serious that President Truman would be obliged to take account of it with a forthrightness and comprehensiveness which he now seems reluctant to exercise. The politics associated with the President's attitude is complex. In his 1948 campaign for the Presidency he frankly sought the support of labor and to a considerable extent got it. His principal appeal was a denunciation of the existing labor relations law, the Taft-Hartley Act, largely on the ground that it put undue restraint on labor leaders and unions. But the present attitude of important labor leaders is far from gratitude, it is rather one of bullying. In this respect as in others Mr. Truman seems experiencing consequences of a past he in large part created himself.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Thanksgiving 1951

The pause that comes with any holiday can, with advantage, be a moment for self-examination. Thanksgiving Day, in particular, lends itself to that purpose. Otherwise, each day is like the day before a rhythmic motion from darkness to light and then to darkness again—and nothing more.

Our Thanksgiving holiday is strictly American. It is unrelated to politics, as is the Fourth of July, or to a religious order, as is Easter. It exists by Presidential proclamation. Yet, few documents ordering the event grasp at its essential purpose. The noblest of these proclamations was Abraham Lincoln's of March 30, 1863, in which he said:

"Whereas it is the duty of nations as well as of men to own their dependence upon the overruling power of God, to confess their sins and transgressions in humble sorrow, yet with assured hope that genuine repentance will lead to mercy and pardon, and to recognize the sublime truth, announced in the Holy Scriptures and proven by all history, that those nations only are blessed whose God is the Lord; . . .

". . . We have been the recipients of the choicest bounties of Heaven; we have been preserved these many years in peace and prosperity; we have grown in numbers, wealth, and power as no other nation has ever grown. But we have forgotten God. We have forgotten the gracious hand which preserved us in peace and multiplied and enriched and strengthened us, and we have vainly imagined, in the deceitfulness of our hearts, that all these blessings were produced by some superior wisdom and virtue of our own. Intoxicated with unbroken success, we have become too self-sufficient to feel the necessity of redeeming and preserving grace, too proud to pray to the God that made us."

This Thanksgiving proclamation, in nobility of expression, in depth of sentiment, in understanding of the religious motivation of our civilization is as magnificent as the Gettysburg address. It is a demonstrable fact in history that no civilization has blossomed or long existed, the roots of which are not deep in religious belief and experience.

To assume that Thanksgiving Day is a pause from work, accompanied by the feast of the turkey and pumpkin pie, is to give to Bacchus a day dedicated to God.

There was a time in our land when such a festival was inaugurated with prayer at the family table, when children were taught to realize that the richness of our lives comes from God. Today, too many children must assume that it comes from the breaks that father got, or from the bounty of government, or from the politicians who have set themselves up as feudal lords mailing government checks to their beneficiaries.

Men who thank God for their bread are independent of other men. They raise their eyes heavenward and know the truth. They do not live in fear of man, or government, or power. They know that all men are created to be equal in the eyes of the Lord and when they have returned to that permanent state in which dust is dust, only that remains of them which is eternal, the soul, the holy spirit that is life.

In these troubled times, the thought must come to many: What have I to be thankful for?

Surely, it cannot be for wealth, for automobiles and electrical refrigerators and television sets. For if we had none of these, there still would be much to be thankful for.

We need to be thankful for life itself.

We need to be thankful that our lovely land has not been invaded by a foreign foe, that our cities have not ben devastated, that our infants have not been slaughtered by the savagery of wild races emerging to power.

We need to be thankful that, for most of us, sons outlive their fathers, and in those homes that are tortured by the nearness of war tragedy, they know that none take lightly their misfortunes and that we join in their sorrows as though they were our own.

We need to be thankful that we have been chosen from among the nations to lead mankind to a peaceful world. Recognizing our own weaknesses and the frailties of those who lead us, we fear the weight of such responsibility and humbly pray that we may not do more harm than good. But we know that whatever we do is in kindliness and not to harm, to conquer, to enslave.

May God bless this Day of Thanksgiving.

My New York

By MEL HEIMER

NEW YORK—It is given to some men more than others to understand women. This is not to be taken as a comment that any man understands any woman, since this obviously is a ridiculous statement. However, some get a little closer to the real nature of the strange wild creature, sometimes because of extra perceptivity, sometimes because of the nature of their work. Aaron Kaye is a good example of this last. It is likely he knows more about the real inner thoughts of New York women than any other man, just because of his work.

Mr. Kaye, a fascinating man who practices yogi, writes poems and composes an occasional fable or two, is the owner of a big "thrift shop"—maybe the biggest of its kind anywhere—and as such he buys and sells more mink coats than anyone in the United States.

A new mink coat is a wistful dream, and only that, to most women, even here in New York. A used mink is something a little closer to home, something a girl actually can picture herself owning, if she goes without lunch, saves money by not going to the movies, nags her husband enough or lies, cheats and steals in sufficient quantities.

Men have a habit of looking on women with one view or another. Either they think girls are dreamy, filmy sacred vessels whose thoughts are gossamer and whose character is pure carved ivory, or they think all women are schemers lying in ambush with drawn knives for the next man along.

Mr. Kaye, by virtue of his business, knows they are a little of each; in other words, they are people. A woman's life—her joys, her sorrows, her tragedies and great love affairs—can be moulded toward the purchase of a used mink coat. As a man who earns a dollar every so often writing about women and their assorted emotions, I envy Mr. Kaye his profession.

Mr. Kaye is the man who went up to Klondike during the gold rush and made money not by panning but by selling eggs at $2 each. These profits he gambled away, after which he tried mining and didn't like it, and then he launched a fur company.

The 1929 depression wiped out his own personal fortune, so he borrowed $1,000 and opened his first "thrift shop." He ultimately had four of them operating and today he has them consolidated in one building.

As a man who carries more minks in stock than most of the major stores in Manhattan lumped together, Mr. Kaye likes to look on himself almost as a patron saint of the mink-dreamers.

Aaron sells his used furs at what seem to be fractions of their original costs and he likes to tell of the time a waitress walked into his shop with a bulging valise, picked out the mink she wanted and then opened the valise and spilled out, $850 in nickels, dimes and quarters—all her tips—on the floor.

On still another occasion, a dowager-with-a-stomacher type of woman pulled up to the store in a limousine with a chauffer and strode determinedly in with four furs over her arm. "I want $950 for these coats and no arguments," she said flatly. Mr. Kaye wrote her out a check for $950 and bid her good day. "I would have given her $1,500 for them," he says philosophically, "but the customer is always right."

Mr. Kaye gets his minks from any and every place, tracking them down to the four corners of the earth, including Brooklyn, if necessary. For example, when Hedy Lamarr decided to wipe the slate clean and sell all her personal effects as a prelude to beginning a brave, new world with a brave, new husband, Mr. Kaye went to Hollywood for the auction and bought 98 per cent of the Lamarr furs.

He also bought a goodly portion of her underwear and one of those historic items, an evening gown with built-in you-know-whats, but at last reports he hadn't offered this for sale at his shop.

Mr. Kaye also recently bought most of the furs of Linda Christian, a movie performer married to an actor named Power, all of which helps to keep him on the throne as (in his own words) America's "slightly used fur king."

He is in his spare time a student of the mores of wayward husbands (memo to John's "other wife": that mink you get likely is a used one) and, as we have said, a man with an enormous working knowledge of women and their peculiar minds.

False dignity makes you ridiculous; real dignity wins admiration. Be sure you know the difference!

SECRETS OF CHARM

By JOHN ROBERT POWERS

The laugh-getting formula of the "fall," as used on the stage, works so well because it comes straight from life. When a clown pretending to great dignity suddenly slips on a banana peel, you laugh for the same reason as when seeing a street urchin snowball the hat off of a harumph-type gentleman. The "fall" gets its name from the topping of any phoney kind of dignity.

Laughing Stock

Off-stage, in the daily routines of life, many people make themselves ridiculous in similar fashion without realizing it. The uppity woman who is brusque with those who serve her, the stiff-backed stranger sharing your tearoom table who fails to respond to your polite "good morning," the stuffy girl in your office who "doesn't have to work—just does it for fun" are common examples. Their rudeness springs from a false sense of their own dignity. There's always a banana peel waiting around the corner for such pretenders.

Only those who possess a genuine sense of dignity can escape the ludicrous fall. They are the people who make treasured friends and pleasurable colleagues. As people of real worth, their manner always evidences their desire to live up to their responsibilities toward others. They have no need to be self-important, stuffy, stiff, humorless or easily offended. They are sure to be good sports, warm and understanding in all their relations and full of joy of life. It is the dignity of others that they are always careful to observe—and in so doing, of course, the greatest dignity naturally becomes theirs.

14K Dignity

"Remember this," wrote Marcus Aurelius, "that there is a proper dignity and proportion to be observed in the performance of every act of life." Follow that admonition and it will guide you to a genuine sense of dignity that will protect you from ever taking a ridiculing fall. At regular intervals appraise your own importance in relation to your setting. As often as possible visualize your actions and rehearse your words before you present them to the world.

Then your dignity will be of the 14K variety and it will inspire admiration instead of "the laugh."

Rice Dessert For Two Meals

Baked fruited rice is good hot or cold. It is a good idea to make enough to have once hot with enough left over to put in the refrigerator for another meal. Butter a baking dish and put into it a layer of cooked rice. Next comes a layer of crushed pineapple with a sprinkling of plumped raisins. Dot with butter and add a light sprinkling of brown sugar. Repeat the layers of rice and fruit, and top with another layer of rice sprinkled with sugar and dots of butter. Bake in a slow oven, covered, about 30 minutes.

My New York

By MEL HEIMER

NEW YORK—It is given to some men more than others to understand women. This is not to be taken as a comment that any man understands any woman, since this obviously is a ridiculous statement. However, some get a little closer to the real nature of the strange wild creature, sometimes because of extra perceptivity, sometimes because of the nature of their work. Aaron Kaye is a good example of this last. It is likely he knows more about the real inner thoughts of New York women than any other man, just because of his work.

Mr. Kaye, a fascinating man who practices yogi, writes poems and composes an occasional fable or two, is the owner of a big "thrift shop" —maybe the biggest of its kind anywhere—and as such he buys and sells more mink coats than anyone in the United States.

A new mink coat is a wistful dream, and only that, to most women, even here in New York. A used mink is something a little closer to home, something a girl actually can picture herself owning, if she goes without lunch, saves money by not going to the movies, nags her husband enough or lies, cheats and steals in sufficient quantities.

Men have a habit of looking on women with one view or another. Either they think girls are dreamy, filmy sacred vessels whose thoughts are gossamer and whose character is pure carved ivory, or they think all women are schemers lying in ambush with drawn knives for the next man along.

Mr. Kaye, by virtue of his business, knows they are a little of each; in other words, they are people. A woman's life—her joys, her sorrows, her tragedies and great love affairs —can be moulded toward the purchase of a used mink coat. As a man who earns a dollar every so often writing about women and their assorted emotions, I envy Mr. Kaye his profession.

Mr. Kaye is the man who went up to Klondike during the gold rush and made money not by panning but by selling eggs at $2 each. These profits he gambled away, after which he tried mining and didn't like it, and then he launched a fur company.

The 1929 depression wiped out his own personal fortune, so he borrowed $1,000 and opened his first "thrift shop." He ultimately had four of them operating and today he has them consolidated in one building.

As a man who carries more minks in stock than most of the major stores in Manhattan lumped together, Mr. Kaye likes to look on himself almost as a patron saint of the mink-dreamers.

Aaron sells his used furs at what seem to be fractions of their original costs and he likes to tell of the time a waitress walked into his shop with a bulging valise, picked out the mink she wanted and then opened the valise and spilled out $850 in nickels, dimes and quarters —all her tips—on the floor.

On still another occasion, a dowager-with-a-stomacher type of woman pulled up to the store in a limousine with a chauffer and strode determinedly in with four furs over her arm. "I want $950 for these coats and no arguments," she said flatly. Mr. Kaye wrote her out a check for $950 and bid her good day. "I would have given her $1,500 for them," he says philosophically, "but the customer is always right."

Mr. Kaye gets his minks from any and every place, tracking them down to the four corners of the earth, including Brooklyn, if necessary. For example, when Hedy Lamarr decided to wipe the slate clean and sell all her personal effects as a prelude to beginning a brave, new world with a brave, new husband, Mr. Kaye went to Hollywood for the auction and bought 98 per cent of the Lamarr furs.

He also bought a goodly portion of her underwear and one of those historic items, an evening gown with built-in you-know-whats, but at last reports he hadn't offered this for sale at his shop.

Mr. Kaye also recently bought most of the furs of Linda Christian, a movie performer married to an actor named Power, all of which helps to keep him on the throne as (in his own words) America's "slightly used fur king."

He is in his spare time a student of the mores of wayward husbands (memo to John's "other wife": that mink you get likely is a used one) and, as we have said, a man with an enormous working knowledge of women and their peculiar minds.

False dignity makes you ridiculous; real dignity wins admiration. Be sure you know the difference!

SECRETS OF CHARM

By JOHN ROBERT POWERS

The laugh-getting formula of the "fall," as used on the stage, works so well because it comes straight from life. When a clown pretending to great dignity suddenly slips on a banana peel, you laugh for the same reason as when seeing a street urchin snowball the hat off of a harumph-type gentleman. The "fall" gets its name from the topping of any phoney kind of dignity.

Laughing Stock

Off-stage, in the daily routines of life, many people make themselves ridiculous in similar fashion without realizing it. The uppity woman who is brusque with those who serve her, the stiff-backed stranger sharing your tearoom table who fails to respond to your polite "good morning," the stuffy girl in your office who "doesn't have to work—just does it for fun" are common examples. Their rudeness springs from a false sense of their own dignity. There's always a banana peel waiting around the corner for such pretenders.

Only those who possess a genuine sense of dignity can escape the ludicrous fall. They are the people who make treasured friends and pleasurable colleagues. As people of real worth, their manner always evidences their desire to live up to their responsibilities toward others. They have no need to be self-important, stuffy, stiff, humorless or easily offended. They are sure to be good sports, warm and understanding in all their relations and full of joy of life. It is the dignity of others that they are always careful to observe—and in so doing, of course, the greatest dignity naturally becomes theirs.

14K Dignity

"Remember this," wrote Marcus Aurelius, "that there is a proper dignity and proportion to be observed in the performance of every act of life." Follow that admonition and it will guide you to a genuine sense of dignity that will protect you from ever taking a ridiculing fall. At regular intervals appraise your own importance in relation to your setting. As often as possible visualize your actions and rehearse your words before you present them to the world.

Then your dignity will be of the 14K variety and it will inspire admiration instead of "the laugh."

McGreevy Still Missing

Parents of a former LaSalle High School athlete have been advised that their son is still "missing in action" in the Korean war.

Pfc. Robert L. McGreevy was reported missing November 2, 1950, when remnants of the First Cavalry Division were trapped in the northwestern sector of Korea.

Pfc. McGreevy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Owen McGreevy, 240 North Mechanic Street, were notified several days ago that their son is believed to be a prisoner of the Chinese.

His advice to you is try Carstairs yourself . . . tonight! You'll enjoy a better drink at a better price . . . so ask for it at your favorite bar or package store now!

The name Jim Rogers is not that of a specific person, but instead stands for a type —the Man who Cares.

Griffith Fined $100 On Pa. Liquor Count

Homer C. (Porky) Griffith, Frostburg, was fined $100 and costs Monday at Somerset, Pa., on charges of violating the Pennsylvania liquor laws.

Griffith, court attendants said, was arrested November 1 and held for illegal possession and transportation of liquor and possessing liquor without an official seal. He was held on $1,000 bond by Justice of the Peace H. S. Whipperman.

Before Judge Thomas F. Lansberry in Somerset County Criminal Court, Griffith entered a plea of guilty, was fined $100 and costs and released. He was represented by Attorney Leland W. Walker, Somerset. The state kept the seized liquor.

Previously, attendants revealed, Griffith had waived finding of a true bill by the grand jury.

Pennsylvania officials explained it is illegal in that state to acquire or transport any liquor not obtained in a state liquor store.

A vehicle, described as a small produce truck and the liquor that partly filled it, was seized by state officers and held pending outcome of the case. Value of the liquor involved was estimated at the time of the arrest at several thousand dollars. Griffith was alone when taken into custody in Somerset Borough, officers said.

ON THE LINE

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK—(INS)—In sentencing the obnoxious basketball fixer Sal Sollazzo and 14 corrupted players, General Sessions Judge Saul Streit delivered himself of a superbly scathing survey of what's wrong with college athletics.

His findings should be made compulsory reading for every U. S. college president, coach, athletic director and sports-minded alumnus.

In one mighty indictment, Judge Streit has gathered together lesser warnings sounded by sportswriters for years and laced the whole with language which will remain on the conscience of college athletics for generations to come.

His document should become the yardstick by which the integrity of all high-pressure college sports organizations is measured. The judge has rendered the pretense of college athletics a devastating blow but one which the colleges can recover from if they have the courage to admit his charges and do something about cleaning house.

The basketball fix was, in one important way, a greater sports tragedy than the baseball fix of the Chicago White Sox of 1919. It not only polluted players but it polluted players who were posing as amateur representatives of schools with generally fine educational facilities and reputations.

The Chicago White Sox were a crassly commercial enterprise, in business to make money, not to build character; and even in the first burst of moral indignation over the tainted souls of Shoeless Joe Jackson, Eddie Cicotte and the others there was the feeling that they could be excused because they worked for a notorious skinflint.

In the basketball case, as Judge Streit pointed out, we find the spread of cancerous guilt extending not just to the players and the slob who paid them off but to the very vitals of the institutions.

He has pointed a badly needed finger at the athletic departments of the schools concerned, and at many other schools he named as co-conspirators in this epidemic of "fraud, forgery and coruption." He has damned the practice of proselyting promising athletes, but he has also damned professors and officers who deliberately falsified the report cards of the goons involved and engaged actively in the conspiracy that has now led them to prison.

One wonders, in search of an adequate description of the lowness of the man Sollazzo, if the same sort of diatribe should not be directed at college authorities who turned their backs and permitted these wretched weeds to grow in the inspiring foliage of the schools splendid purpose in life. Perhaps they are worse than Sollazzo, a greedy bum who never had the opportunity to acquire much learning, or class, or character.

• — • — •

Judge Streit took this occasion to warn such college heads as may not be aware of the widespread corruption of the amateur ideal that the cancer that has been exposed in basketball could readily spread to college football—if it has not already proved that contagious.

It stands to reason that a dolt who happens to be good at football can never learn much about the ethics of sportsmanship if his guardian, in that learning, is the sanctified-looking college athlete apparatus.

The dolt understands from the time he is 16 that if he stays hot enough on the high school team he'll in time have a soft job with almost any big time college of his choice, good pay, free room and board, free books, a chance to travel, and some wild-eyed alumnus for a fairy godfather.

If he has any sense of balance at the start it is warped soon enough by the aggressive hypocrisy of educators and others who tamper with him—and it's a short and easy step from there to re-selling his services to someone like Sollazzo.

Judge Streit should be an honored man among the responsible colleges and univirsities of America today. He has rendered them a signal service by exposing a situation which could deprive them completely of honor. It will be a greater blot on the fair name of higher learning if the college heads now attempt to squirm out from under his indictment.

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK—(INS)—In sentencing the obnoxious basketball fixer Sal Sollazzo and 14 corrupted players, General Sessions Judge Saul Streit delivered himself of a superbly scathing survey of what's wrong with college athletics.

His findings should be made compulsory reading for every U. S. college president, coach, athletic director and sports-minded alumnus.

In one mighty indictment, Judge Streit has gathered together lesser warnings sounded by sportswriters for years and laced the whole with language which will remain on the conscience of college athletics for generations to come.

His document should become the yardstick by which the integrity of all high-pressure college sports organizations is measured. The judge has rendered the pretense of college athletics a devastating blow but one which the colleges can recover from if they have the courage to admit his charges and do something about cleaning house.

The basketball fix was, in one important way, a greater sports tragedy than the baseball fix of the Chicago White Sox of 1919. It not only polluted players but it polluted players who were posing as amateur representatives of schools with generally fine educational facilities and reputations.

The Chicago White Sox were a crassly commercial enterprise, in business to make money, not to build character; and even in the first burst of moral indignation over the tainted souls of Shoeless Joe Jackson, Eddie Cicotte and the others there was the feeling that they could be excused because they worked for a notorious skinflint.

In the basketball case, as Judge Streit pointed out, we find the spread of cancerous guilt extending not just to the players and the slob who paid them off but to the very vitals of the institutions.

He has pointed a badly needed finger at the athletic departments of the schools concerned, and at many other schools he named as co-conspirators in this epidemic of "fraud, forgery and coruption." He has damned the practice of proselyting promising athletes, but he has also damned professors and officers who deliberately falsified the report cards of the goons involved and engaged actively in the conspiracy that has now led them to prison.

One wonders, in search of an adequate description of the lowness of the man Sollazzo, if the same sort of diatribe should not be directed at college authorities who turned their backs and permitted these wretched weeds to grow in the inspiring foliage of the schools splendid purpose in life. Perhaps they are worse than Sollazzo, a greedy bum who never had the opportunity to acquire much learning, or class, or character.

• — • — •

Judge Streit took this occasion to warn such college heads as may not be aware of the widespread corruption of the amateur ideal that the cancer that has been exposed in basketball could readily spread to college football—if it has not already proved that contagious.

It stands to reason that a dolt who happens to be good at football can never learn much about the ethics of sportsmanship if his guardian, in that learning, is the sanctified-looking college athlete apparatus.

The dolt understands from the time he is 16 that if he stays hot enough on the high school team he'll in time have a soft job with almost any big time college of his choice, good pay, free room and board, free books, a chance to travel, and some wild-eyed alumnus for a fairy godfather.

If he has any sense of balance at the start it is warped soon enough by the aggressive hypocrisy of educators and others who tamper with him—and it's a short and easy step from there to re-selling his services to someone like Sollazzo.

Judge Streit should be an honored man among the responsible colleges and univirsities of America today. He has rendered them a signal service by exposing a situation which could deprive them completely of honor. It will be a greater blot on the fair name of higher learning if the college heads now attempt to squirm out from under his indictment.

How To Duck A Subpoena Server

The other day the telephone operator sent word Mr. P. Davis wanted to see me.

"Go and find out what he's got on his mind," I said to Miss Rahl.

She came back shortly and reported, after stalling around, he acknowledged he had a subpoena and wouldn't serve it on anybody but me. It was some routine, trivial syndicate suit.

John Wheeler

"Tell him to go chase himself. I'm going to be out of town and don't want to get tied up in a court action."

Then by the simple device of walking down one flight of back stairs, I left him cooling his heels or whatever he was cooling, and I haven't gotten the document yet. All this stirred old memories, and I am going to tell a story for the first time which may not reflect any particular glory on the principal characters, but perhaps the reader will kindly attribute their conduct to youth.

Bud Fisher, Ed Barrow, later mastermind of the Yankees, and I had met in the old Waldorf bar to have a cocktail before dinner and before prohibition. The price was two for a quarter then, the best in town. The cartoonist thought it would be nice to invite a couple of young ladies, who had made the Ziegfeld chorus, to dine and asked me to join them. I paid for the next round. Time slipped by, as it frequently will if you don't keep looking at your watch, and the first thing we knew it was 11:30.

We hustled up to the old-fashioned apartment house in West 44th Street where one of the girls lived, in a National car I owned, and were greeted at the door by a surly combination Irish janitor and elevator operator. When we got in the lift, as we say in England, he refused to start it.

"Go on and walk up," he said.

Being a peaceful guy and since it was only two flights, I did, leaving my companion in the lobby. I rang the doorbell, and a young lady in a kimono answered, so wrought up and hot you could have fried an egg any place on her. She bawled me out good for being only four hours late and said her friend had gone home and to bed without any supper, althought they had had other opportunities. I suggested she seemed to be a little impatient.

"I've got a better fight than this downstairs," I remarked as she slammed the door in my face.

I proved a prophet. When I reached the ground floor, Bud Fisher was in an argument with the janitor. As I joined them, he turned to me and said,

"And, as for you, you big S. O. B." In those days when spoken out; this was a term of opprobrium since it was before Presidents of the United States began to call newspapermen that name about every week.

I popped him on the chin, and he dropped as I caught him good. Fisher, a little guy but full of spunk, jumped on him and grabbed him by the lapels, giving him a good going-over. Divots were being knocked off. He began to holler and tenants started running out in wrappers and pajamas, it being a warm night. One woman was screaming.

"They're killing Pat." By this time blood was beginning to flow.

"We'd better get out of here, Bud," I said. We did, but not in time, as the janitor and his supporters headed by a cop caught up with us, and he invited us to go to the West 47th Street police station.

"How about riding in my car?" I suggested politely. He agreed.

The desk sergeant bawled him out for not having any complainant, which party of the first part was walking up. They met us as we were leaving, so they held Fisher while I went out and hustled bail —no easy job at one in the morning. My friend, meanwhile, won $12 from the off-duty policemen playing dominoes.

The criminal charge was dismissed the next day when we had our mouthpiece in court who successfully claimed we had been attacked and were acting in self-defense. Then Pat brought a civil suit, accusing us of everything up to murder and demanding $50,000 damages. We ducked those subpoena servers for a year, although they came in all sorts of disguises, and both sexes were employed. We walked downstairs from the 11th floor or rode the freight elevator. We were finally caught one day by accident, and, on the advice of our lawyer, settled for $500.

And the two girls! They felt so sorry for us, they made up, and we had a big blowout the next night.

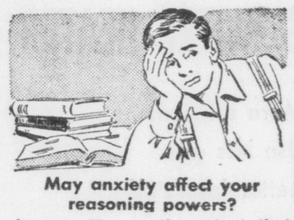
Mirror Of Your Mind

By LAWRENCE GOULD, Consulting Psychologist

Are people who have temper tantrums dangerous?

Answer: Potentially, yes, although the danger varies with the character and frequency of the outbursts. Insofar as someone really "does not know what he is doing," he is temporarily out of his mind and is as dangerous as any other "insane" person. But only a very childish-minded person loses his touch with reality completely, and the average fit of temper is at least partly an "act" which you need not take too seriously. Most hot-tempered people deceive themselves into thinking that they can escape the consequences of what they say and do by insisting later that they "didn't mean it."



May anxiety affect your reasoning powers?

Answer: Yes, to the extent that you are neurotic or a suffer from any kind of mental illness, report Drs. Livingston Welch and Oskar Diethelm in the Archives of Neurology and Psychiatry (Chicago). Experiments showed that the ability to draw sound conclusions from observed facts was adversely affected by anxiety in all but exceptionally healthy-minded people and that in the case of mental patients, inability to reason logically helps to delay their cure. Loss of reasoning power may take the form of vagueness, over-emphasis on details, rambling or failure to define terms clearly.

Is it "great men" who make history?

Answer: Yes, but it is no less true that history makes great men. The idea that humanity progresses only when a "leader" or a "great man" appears is largely an outgrowth of the "father complex"—the average person's yearning for some stronger figure to depend on. Freud was a great man whose discoveries have revolutionized psychology but he would have been ignored if not regarded as a madman if he had made them a century sooner. And if there had been no general dissatisfaction with the rule of King George III, Washington might have remained unknown. Great men are developed only when great issues open the way for them.

The idea that humanity progresses only when a "leader" or a "great man" appears is largely an outgrowth of the "father complex"—the average person's yearning for some stronger figure to depend on. Freud was a great man whose discoveries have revolutionized psychology but he would have been ignored if not regarded as a madman if he had made them a century sooner. And if there had been no general dissatisfaction with the rule of King George III, Washington might have remained unknown. Great men are developed only when great issues open the way for them.

Governor Asks Investigation Of Terps' Athletic Program

McKeldin's Act Tops Off Storm Of Controversy

Chief Executive Wants To Know How Terps Recruit Athletes

BY GEORGE BOWEN

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 20 (AP)—The governor's call for an investigation on how the University of Maryland recruits athletes today topped off a storm of controversy arising from the undefeated football team.

Governor Theodore R. McKeldin asked the University Board of Regents in a letter to determine "the propriety of the present system of recruiting athletes, their academic standings, the academic pursuits required of them and the emoluments, if any, they receive beyond tuition."

The governor said like other Marylanders his reaction to the university's undefeated record, which earned it the Sugar Bowl bid against Tennessee, "has been one of pride."

But, "I would like to have the board determine whether the system (of recruiting) is based on deceit, whether it violates the rules of intercollegiate sport and whether it could possibly bring dishonor on the university."

Governor Acts Quickly

The governor's action came quickly in the wake of New York judge Saul S. Streit's general denunciation yesterday of commercialism in intercollegiate football and specific reference to the University of Maryland, among others.

Prior to the governor's intervention, resentment to the judge's mention of Maryland swelled throughout the state among university officials, alumni, sports writers and the father of a player named by Judge Streit.

Dr. H. C. Byrd, university president, could not be reached for comment after McKeldin's announcement. But earlier he said Maryland athletes get scholarships the same as at any other big university. The scholarships entitle them to room, board, books and tuition.

"If I found that any of them was getting anything more he'd be fired in 15 minutes."

Terps Pay Laundry Money

Dr. Byrd admitted the players also are paid $15 a month as "laundry money."

"The Southern Conference has approved the giving of laundry service, or its equivalent in colleges that do not have laundry service of their own, to athletes on scholarships. The University of Maryland does not have its own laundry service.

"The $15 a month is just to compensate the boys for having their laundry done outside. The money comes from the scholarship fund, provided by the alumni."

Asked if any change in the Maryland athletic system was contemplated in light of the controversy, Dr. Byrd replied:

"Certainly not! Why should we make any change in a system that is working successfully just because of criticism from an obscure fellow in New York."

Dr. Byrd and others took particular exception to Judge Streit's remark that 60 of 97 football players come from out of state. The majority come from Pennsylvania.

"Practically all the high schools in those other states play football," said Dr. Byrd. "Not so many high schools in Maryland do. Eight hundred high schools in Pennsylvania play football."

Only 25 Play Football

Only 25 high schools play football in Maryland. In addition to 800 in bordering Pennsylvania, neighboring West Virginia from which some other Maryland players come has 170 football-playing high schools.

Dr. Albert E. Goldstein, vice president of the Maryland Alumni Association, expressed the same reaction as Dr. Byrd to Judge Streit's reference about out-of-state players.

"So what of it?" asked Dr. Goldstein who said "I'm boiling mad. Can you tell me any institution that doesn't go out of state to get students."

Dr. Goldsmith said he resented most Judge Streit connecting the basketball fix scandals and football.

'Have you ever heard of a football game being thrown? Of course not. This is an attempt to mix scandals—when there hasn't been any football scandal."

Talbot T. Speer, president of the Maryland Alumni, said he thought the judge was "going a little out of his way to hit Maryland."

NCAA Plans Rigid Controls For Athletics

Bowl Games Might Go, Financial Aid Is Hit

CHICAGO, Nov. 20 (AP) — The National Collegiate Athletic Association's policy making council today proposed a program of rigid athletic controls. It hit especially at lax academic standards, professionalism trends, and asked curtailment of post-season competition, possibly leading to the end of bowl football games.

The council, drafting a concise reform list for presentation to the full NCAA convention in Cincinnati Jan. 9-12, 1952, approved a resolution banning post season contractual commitments in all sports which extend beyond Jan. 2, 1953.

The resolution directed the NCAA's extra events committee to begin immediately a full year's study of "the pressure implications inherent in the playing of intercollegiate post season games in all sports."

The resolution specified NCAA-sponsored post season competition, as well as implied reference to bowl football games.

The council explained that such prior commitments as the Rose Bowl game between the Pacific Coast Conference and the Big Ten for the next three years, and possibly the Cotton Bowl game, would not be affected.

Hitting at excessive financial aid to athletes, the council recommended to the Cincinnati convention a code amendment requiring all financial assistance to be administered or approved by individual institutions. This would strike at under-the-table gifts to star athletes from over-enthusiastic alumni.

The penalty for violation would be ineligibility of the involved athlete.

In the unanimously adopted statement, the council said it was clear that collegiate athletic evils have developed mainly from two major sources: 1. The undue pressure to win, particularly upon the individual coaches involved. 2. The need for gate receipts from football to finance an adequate athletic program.

Edgar (Eddie) Wolfe was reminiscing the other day and recalled that he was a member of the first Cumberland team to play before 10,000 or more spectators.

The date was Thanksgiving Day, 1922, the scene of action was Parkersburg, W. Va., and the teams were Parkersburg High School and Allegany County High School.

That's probably the longest trip ever taken by a local schoolboy eleven.

Wolfe, who played in the ACHS backfield, says Parkersburg invited Potomac State to play on Turkey Day but the Keyser school recommended Allegany after the Blue and White had trimmed the Mineral county team.

Allegany, coached by Fred "Ike" Mills, now The Dingle druggist, made the trip and received one of the worst trouncings ever absorbed by a local school in football.

Wolfe recalls that "Gibby" Welch, who later became a backfield great at Pitt, was the ace of the "Big Reds" and scored nine touchdowns in that game.

"Eddie" has taken in many football games since his high school days but he still refers to the Parkersburg eleven of 1922 as the biggest and best high school team he ever has seen.

Teammates of Wolfe on the squad of 29 years ago included Norman F. "Cotton" Geatz, father of the present LaSalle coach, John J. Long, police and fire commissioner, Les Batie, "Red" Ayers, "Mac" McDaniel, Norwood Wilkinson, Bruce Cowden, Patsy Gainor, the well known boxer of those days, etc.

Long recalls that when Allegany reeled off a couple of first downs at the start of the game, the captain of the Parkersburg team called his players into a huddle and shouted:

"There's something wrong here!"

It was slaughter from there out.

Long laughingly remarks that the Allegany team really had something to be thankful for that Thanksgiving Day.

"We were thankful to get out of Parkersburg alive," he adds.

Wolfe states that time and again persons have argued with him about the final score of that game. Some contend it was 100-0. Others say it was 110-0. But Eddie will wager the official count was 111-0. He should know.

"Bobby" Cavanaugh recalls that Husta played on the same Cleveland team with Henry "Dutch" Dehnert, Joe Lapchick, Rich Deighan and Pete Barry.

Husta played in the minor leagues for many years before retiring from baseball in 1931. In 1925 he was with the Philadelphia Athletics.

McElhenny, Bruney Are Backs Of Week

NEW YORK, Nov. 20 (AP) — The University of Washington's one-man offense and Ohio State's one-man pass defense were named today as the Associated Press' backs of the week.

Hugh McElhenny, variously described as hurryin', hustlin' and hammerin' by northwestern sportswriters, did all three in scoring all of his teams points in a 20-20 tie with UCLA last Saturday.

Fred Burney, who had not been in the national spotlight broke in with a bang Saturday as he intercepted three passes—one on the goal line—and was the chief defender in the Buckeyes' scoreless tie with Illinois.

Governor Asks Investigation Of Terps' Athletic Program

McKeldin's Act Tops Off Storm Of Controversy

Chief Executive Wants To Know How Terps Recruit Athletes

BY GEORGE BOWEN

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 20 (AP)—The governor's call for an investigation on how the University of Maryland recruits athletes today topped off a storm of controversy arising from the undefeated football team.

Governor Theodore R. McKeldin asked the University Board of Regents in a letter to determine "the propriety of the present system of recruiting athletes, their academic standings, the academic pursuits required of them and the emoluments, if any, they receive beyond tuition."

The date was Thanksgiving Day, 1922, the scene of action was Parkersburg, W. Va., and the teams were Parkersburg High School and Allegany County High School.

That's probably the longest trip ever taken by a local schoolboy eleven.

Wolfe, who played in the ACHS backfield, says Parkersburg invited Potomac State to play on Turkey Day but the Keyser school recommended Allegany after the Blue and White had trimmed the Mineral county team.

Allegany, coached by Fred "Ike" Mills, now The Dingle druggist, made the trip and received one of the worst trouncings ever absorbed by a local school in football.

Wolfe recalls that "Gibby" Welch, who later became a backfield great at Pitt, was the ace of the "Big Reds" and scored nine touchdowns in that game.

"Eddie" has taken in many football games since his high school days but he still refers to the Parkersburg eleven of 1922 as the biggest and best high school team he ever has seen.

Teammates of Wolfe on the squad of 29 years ago included Norman F. "Cotton" Geatz, father of the present LaSalle coach, John J. Long, police and fire commissioner, Les Batie, "Red" Ayers, "Mac" McDaniel, Norwood Wilkinson, Bruce Cowden, Patsy Gainor, the well known boxer of those days, etc.

Long recalls that when Allegany reeled off a couple of first downs at the start of the game, the captain of the Parkersburg team called his players into a huddle and shouted:

"There's something wrong here!" It was slaughter from there out.

Long laughingly remarks that the Allegany team really had something to be thankful for that Thanksgiving Day.

"We were thankful to get out of Parkersburg alive," he adds.

Wolfe states that time and again persons have argued with him about the final score of that game. Some contend it was 100-0. Others say it was 110-0. But Eddie will wager the official count was 111-0. He should know.

Carl Husta, husky pro cager who appeared here with the Cleveland Rosenblums against the Cumberland Caseys in a 1932 contest at the State Armory died recently in Kingston, N. Y. He was a native of New Jersey and was 46 years old.

"Bobby" Cavanaugh recalls that Husta played on the same Cleveland team with Henry "Dutch" Dehnert, Joe Lapchick, Rich Deighan and Pete Barry.

Husta played in the minor leagues for many years before retiring from baseball in 1931. In 1925 he was with the Philadelphia Athletics.

McElhenny, Bruney Are Backs Of Week

NEW YORK, Nov. 20 (AP) — The University of Washington's one-man offense and Ohio State's one-man pass defense were named today as the Associated Press' backs of the week.

Hugh McElhenny, variously described as hurryin', hustlin' and hammerin' by northwestern sportswriters, did all three in scoring all of his teams points in a 20-20 tie with UCLA last Saturday.

Fred Burney, who had not been in the national spotlight broke in with a bang Saturday as he intercepted three passes—one on the goal line—and was the chief defender in the Buckeyes' scoreless tie with Illinois.

Tennessee Returns To Top, Faces Kentucky This Week

Spartans Are Second, Maryland Is Fourth

BY JOHN CHANDLER

NEW YORK, Nov. 20 (AP)—The University of Tennessee was back in the No. 1 spot today in the weekly nation-wide Associated Press football poll but Gen. Bob Neyland's Volunteers are no cinch to wind up the season in that lofty position.

Whereas seven of the top 10 teams close out their regular season this Saturday, Tennessee and two others in the select group have two more games before the long fall grind ends.

Tennessee, which vaulted back into No. 1 and dropped Michigan State into the No. 2 ranking, meets Kentucky Saturday at Lexington and and winds up Dec. 1 with Vanderbilt at Knoxville. Kentucky is the No. 9 team this week, gaining strength after a poor early season.

Either Kentucky or Vandy could hand the unbeaten Vols, named to meet Maryland in the Sugar Bowl New Year's Day, their first setback of the campaign. Kentucky, already selected to play in the Cotton Bowl despite three losses, closes out the schedule with Tennessee rcalling what happned a year ago.

Spilled Kentucky Last Year

Then Kentucky was rolling along unbeaten in 10 games, while Tennessee had lost once. The Vols downed Kentucky, 7-0. The Vols haven't lost since the 1950 opener.

The seven teams which end their regular season Saturday are Michigan State, No. 2 this week; Stanford, No. 3; Maryland, No. 4; Princeton, No. 5; Illinois, No. 6; and Wisconsin, No. 8; and Kentucky, No. 9.

Georgia Tech, No. 7, meets Davidson Saturday, and Georgia Dec. 1, both games in Atlanta. Tech also has accepted an Orange Bowl invite. The No. 10 team, Baylor, plays Southern Methodist Saturday, and Rice on Dec. 1. Rice, T.C.U., Baylor, Texas and Southern Methodist, still are contenders for the Cotton Bowl assignment against Kentucky.

For the teams ending their schedule this week, Stanford appears to have the toughest outlook in its game with California at Palo Alto. Stanford seems assured of the Rose Bowl bid, but a defeat won't help the Indians' No. 3 rating in the poll, which continues two more weeks.

Terps Should Win

Michigan State, No. 1 in the poll a week ago, plays Colorado at East Lansing. Maryland's powerful Terps should romp over West Virginia at College Park in their finale before heading for the New Orleans Sugar Bowl.

Already winner of a fifth straight big three crown, Princeton can wrap up its second consecutive Ivy League title by defeating Dartmouth at Tigertown Saturday.

Illinois can assure the Big 10 title and a trip to the Rose Bowl by defeating or tying Northwestern Saturday at Evanston. But, the Illini won't be buying any tickets for Pasadena until the game's ended. Northwestern has beaten Illinois for the last four years, and deprived the same team of a RoseBowl excursion last fall by winning a 14-7 stunner.

Wisconsin meets Minnesota at Minneapolis. A victory for the Badgers and defeat of Illinois by Northwestern and Purdue by Indiana would give Wisconsin the Big 10 crown and a Rose Bowl job.

The top ten, with first place votes and season' records in parentheses:

	Points
1. Tennessee (60) (8-0)	1348
2. Michigan State (38) (8-0)	1290
3. Stanford (18) (9-0)	1193
4. Maryland (26) (8-0)	1167
5. Princeton (8) (8-0)	814
6. Illinois (2) (7-0-1)	802
7. Georgia Tech (2) (8-0-1)	673
8. Wisconsin (3) (6-1-1)	442
9. Kentucky (4) (7-3)	339
10. Baylor (6-1-1)	333
SECOND TEN
11. Southern Calif. (7-2)	147
12. Oklahoma (6-2)	115
13. San Francisco (8-0)	107
14. Texas (7-2)	85
15. Virginia (1) (7-1)	39
16. Holy Cross (1) (7-1)	33
17. Washington State (6-3)	27
18. Rice (5-3)	22
19. California (7-2)	21
20. Bucknell (9-0)	18

Arizona Grid Players Dunk Sports Editor

TUCSON, Ariz., Nov. 20—(AP)—University of Arizona football players hauled critical sports editor Abe Chanin of the Arizona Daily Star from the practice field yesterday and dunked him.

Chanin charged that head coach Bob Winslow had inspired the action, but the mentor denied it although admitting he knew of the players' plans in advance.

Winslow and the team had been under editorial bombardment since losing the "big game" to Arizona State College at Tempe 61-14 and not having the successful season that was predicted for them.

After the varsity had left the practice field, several reserves and freshmen rushed up to Chanin, took him into the shower room and dunked him in a tub of knee-deep water.

Maryland Soccer Team Wins Conference Crown

DURHAM, N. C., Nov. 20 (AP)—Scoring two goals in the final half, one of them a penalty kick, the University of Maryland captured the Southern Conference soccer championship this afternoon by edging the Duke Blue Devils, 3-2. It was the third straight year Maryland had won the Conference hunting.

Dave Strauch led the Duke scoring, tallying once in each of the first period to give the Blue Devils a 2-1 halftime lead. Salinas scored for the Terrapins in the first period.

Maryland roared back in the final period to win the hard-fought match. Otto Winkleman scored both of the final half markers for the winners.

Marion Must Wait

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 20—(AP)—Martin Marion will have to wait until Friday to learn the answer to his bid for a new two-year contract as manager of the St. Louis Cardinals.

Owner Fred Saigh had told Marion he expected to reach a decision by today.

Saigh said it was against his policy to sign contracts for more than one year but Marion "made a good case" in requesting a two-year contract.

Savitt, Trabert Lose In Tourney

Rose, Seixas Score In New South Wales

SYDNEY, AUSTRALIA, Nov. 20 (AP)—The two players who may play singles for the U. S. forces in the coming Davis Cup tennis matches were escorted out of the New South Wales tourney today in a pair of quarterfinal round upsets.

Big Dick Savitt, the Wimbledon and Australian champion from Orange, N. J., was stopped by Mervyn Rose, left-handed Australian internationalist, 3-6, 6-1, 2-6, 7-5, 6-4. Tony Trabert, the bobby sox hero from Cincinnati, was spilled by Vic Seixas of Philadelphia, in straight sets, 6-2, 6-3, 7-5.

To offset these setbacks, however, was the showing of Ted Schroeder of La Crescenta, Calif., who mastered Ken McGregor of Australia, 5-7, 4-6, 6-1, 6-3, 7-5, avenging his Davis Cup defeat of a year ago.

In the other quarterfinal match Frank Sedgman, currently Australia's No. 1 player, defeated Sven Davidsson of Sweden, 6-1, 6-1, 6-4.

Sweden and the United States play in the Davis Cup interzone final Dec. 13-15 with the winner challenging Australia on Dec. 26-28.

The semifinals in the New South Wales meet here will be played Thursday.

Modzelewski Gains More Yardage Than All Eight Opponents

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Nov. 20. (AP)—Ed "Mighty Mo" Modzelewski, piledriving Maryland fullback, has gained more yardage in the Terps' eight games than the total rushing yardage of all eight opponents.

Joe Blair, Maryland's publicity man, came up with the figures today after sweating through a small mountain of statistics.

Blair said Modzelewski had gained 703 yards while Maryland's opponents have rolled up a rushing total of 701 yards. And of the 97 first downs Maryland has made on the ground, "Mighty Mo" has made 57 of them.

The Sugar Bowl-bound Terps ran through West Virginia University plays for about an hour today, then scrimmaged for 45 minutes in preparation for Saturday's meeting with the Mountaineers here.

Coach Jim Tatum will put his squad through a full-scale scrimmage session tomorrow.

Mexican Auto Racers Die

Menocal, Gonzales Suffer Fatal Burns

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 20 (AP) — Mexico's No. 1 driver and his co-pilot were burned fatally in one of six accidents today as Jean Trevoux of France won the first leg of the Pan-American automobile race.

Jose "Che" Estrada Menocal, 51-year-old veteran road racer, and Miguel Gonzales, suffered fatal burns when their car ran off the highway and turned over between Tehuantepec and Caxaca.

Trevoux, veteran of the first Pan-American race last year, drove his 1951 Packard over the 329 miles from Tuxtla Guitierrez to Oaxaca in a record four hours, 11 minutes, 37 seconds.

His speed was calculated at 75.6 miles per hour. Trevoux's time was 23 minutes, 23 seconds faster than the mark set by Johnny Mantz of Long Beach, Calif., in winning the lap last year.

Troy Ruttman of Lynwood, Calif., was second, six minutes, 44 second behind Trevoux. Clary Smith of Long Beach, Calif., was co-driver of Ruttman's 1948 Mercury.

Third was Douglas Ehlinger of Mexico in a 1951 Packard.

Drivers still have a chance at the $23,180 first prize. The race continues with one or two laps a day until the winner arrives at Ciudad Juarez, on the U. S. frontier next Sunday. The driver with the lowest total time for the 1,933 miles wins. The winner of each lap receives $580.

Rides First Winner

BOWIE, Md., Nov. 20—(AP)—Apprentice Jerry Gallion rode the first winner of his career when he piloted Mental Gymnast to victory in the third race here today. The 17-year-old lad hails from Grebbs, Ariz., and is under contract to C. B. Bohn.

Football's Ills Blamed On Grads, Coaches By Stagg

Preservation Of Game Is Urged By Veteran

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (AP) — Venerable Amos Alonzo Stagg, a football coach for more than 60 of his 89 years, pleaded today for the preservation of the game.

"I don't want to see this game lost and it must not be," the erect, white-maned gridiron mentor told the Touchdown Club of Washington.

Stagg, commenting on the "tremendous problem" now confronting football, directly placed the blame for its overemphasis on coaches and alumni.

"There are hundreds and hundreds of boys who don't get a chance to play," he said, "because the coaches and the alumni are all making an effort to get the best into our institutions—those who have reached a high standard."

Rather than do this, Stagg said, the boys that are already in college should be used.

He said presidents of colleges and universities and their faculties have not realized the dangers surrounding football. He said they were not organized "to prevent abuses."

He also accused coaches of not doing enough. He hinted, indirectly, that some were concerned more with personal financial return than the welfare of their players.

He said that when he began coaching at the University of Chicago in 1892 he received an annual salary of $2,500. Then, he related when he was retired from Chicago 41 years later, he went to the College of the Pacific for $3,000 a year.

Stagg, who is now assisting his son, Amos Alonzo, Jr., at Susquehanna College, Selingsgrove, Pa., said he is receiving a "nominal sum." Susquehanna's Stagg-coached football team recently completed its first unbeaten and untied season in its history.

Stagg, to whom the Touchdown Club presented an honorary life membership, also was elected to the organization's football "Hall of Fame."

Troy Ruttman of Lynwood, Calif., was second, six minutes, 44 second behind Trevoux. Clary Smith of Long Beach, Calif., was co-driver of Ruttman's 1948 Mercury.

Third was Douglas Ehlinger of Mexico in a 1951 Packard.

Drivers still have a chance at the $23,180 first prize. The race continues with one or two laps a day until the winner arrives at Ciudad Juarez, on the U. S. frontier next Sunday. The driver with the lowest total time for the 1,933 miles wins. The winner of each lap receives $580.

BOWIE, Md., Nov. 20—(AP)—Apprentice Jerry Gallion rode the first winner of his career when he piloted Mental Gymnast to victory in the third race here today. The 17-year-old lad hails from Grebbs, Ariz., and is under contract to C. B. Bohn.

Football's Ills Blamed On Grads, Coaches By Stagg

Preservation Of Game Is Urged By Veteran

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (AP) — Venerable Amos Alonzo Stagg, a football coach for more than 60 of his 89 years, pleaded today for the preservation of the game.

"I don't want to see this game lost and it must not be," the erect, white-maned gridiron mentor told the Touchdown Club of Washington.

Stagg, commenting on the "tremendous problem" now confronting football, directly placed the blame for its overemphasis on coaches and alumni.

"There are hundreds and hundreds of boys who don't get a chance to play," he said, "because the coaches and the alumni are all making an effort to get the best into our institutions—those who have reached a high standard."

Rather than do this, Stagg said, the boys that are already in college should be used.

He said presidents of colleges and universities and their faculties have not realized the dangers surrounding football. He said they were not organized "to prevent abuses."

He also accused coaches of not doing enough. He hinted, indirectly, that some were concerned more with personal financial return than the welfare of their players.

He said that when he began coaching at the University of Chicago in 1892 he received an annual salary of $2,500. Then, he related when he was retired from Chicago 41 years later, he went to the College of the Pacific for $3,000 a year.

Stagg, who is now assisting his son, Amos Alonzo, Jr., at Susquehanna College, Selingsgrove, Pa., said he is receiving a "nominal sum." Susquehanna's Stagg-coached football team recently completed its first unbeaten and untied season in its history.

Stagg, to whom the Touchdown Club presented an honorary life membership, also was elected to the organization's football "Hall of Fame."

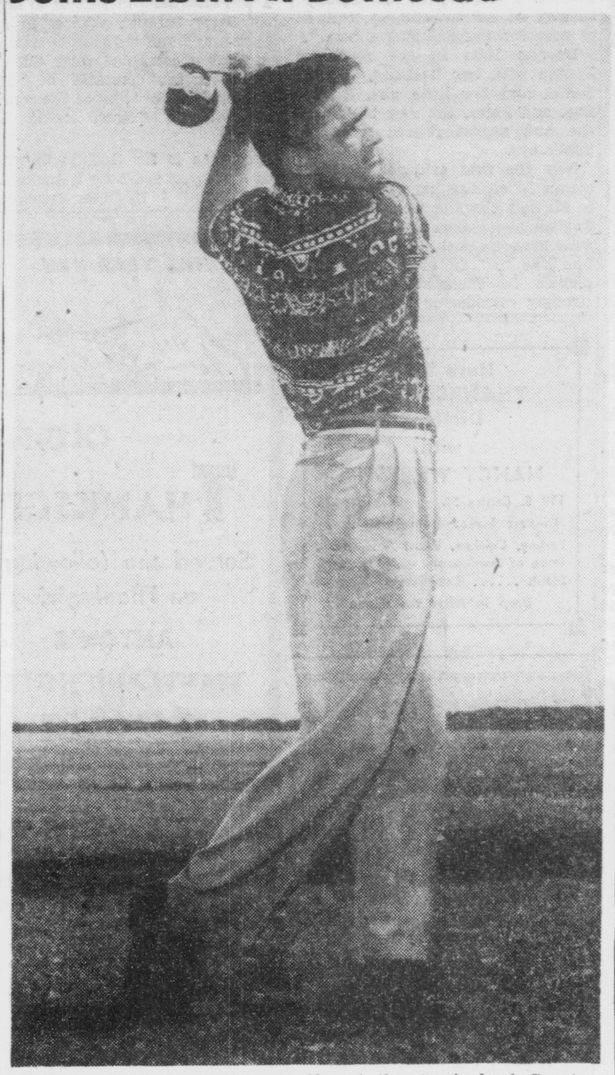
Saylor Resigns CCC Post, Joins Elbin At Bethesda



DON SAYLOR, assistant pro golfer at the Cumberland Country Club for three years, has resigned his post here to accept a similar position at the Burning Tree Club, Bethesda, Md., and will shortly report for duty there. In his new position he will be assistant to Max Elbin, former Cumberlander, who has been pro at the exclusive Montgomery county club since 1946 when he succeeded Lew Worsham.Saylor is a veteran of the Second World War and saw service with the Marines in the South Pacific. Like Elbin, Saylor got his start in golf as a caddy at the Cumberland Country Club. The latter also caddied at the Oak Hill Country Club, Rochester, N. Y., and the North Fork and Sunnehanna clubs, Johnstown, Pa. For the past three years he was Carroll Boggs' assistant at the C. C. C. The Saylors—Don, his wife and 6-year-old son—plan to make their future home at Rockville, Md. They now reside at Narrows Park.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Nov. 19 (AP) — Another backfield star and two linemen have been signed by the South to play in the Blue - Gray football game Dec. 29.

Blue - Gray headquarters announced the addition of Capt. Joe Palumbo, guard, and Bob Miller, tackle, both from the University of Virginia, and Andy Davis, George Washington's backfield ace.

DOERR BATTED .287

BOSTON (AP)—After 15 years with the Boston Red Sox, Bobby Doerr has decided to call it quits because of a bad back. A member of six American League all-star teams, Doerr compiled a lifetime batting average of .287. That also was his average for 1951. During 14 campaigns with the Red Sox (he was in military service one year) Doerr made 1870 hits in 6509 trips to the plate.

KEEPING UP WITH HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 20 (INS)—Van Heflin will eat his Thanksgiving turkey with Frances and his two red-headed daughters, and then leave that night for New York.

Van Heflin

He sails on the Ile De France on December 6 for London where he'll co-star with Wanda Hendrix in "The Mask Of Pharaoh." Both Van and his petite co-star, Wanda, have been negotiating with Mayflower Productions for several months. Now the money is in an American bank so both Van and Wanda will leave New York in December for England and Tangiers.

That means, of course, they won't be home for Christmas, but Frances will join Van in Europe in time for the holidays.

Israel, virgin territory so far as a feature length picture is concerned, will have its first motion picture filmed there when Stanley Kramer makes "The Juggler" for Columbia, in the Holy Land. This story of Isrel was written by Michael Blankfort, who spent some time there in 1949 and made extensive research.

"The Juggler" tells about a former European vaudevillian who escapes from a displaced persons camp and lands in Israel. Outside of an Israelite girl, the entire cast and technicians will be shipped from Hollywood.

Judy Garland's Broadway comeback has been very encouraging to Deanna Durbin, who, for months, because of her avoirdupois, refused to pose for Paris photographers.

Deanna lives in the south of France with her husband, Charles David, and her little girl, Jessica, five, and Peter, the new baby, and she had almost retired from the public eye.

Now the first evidence that she means to change her plans is sent to me in a clipping from one of the English newspapers showing Deanna with France's poet, Jacques Prevert. She has had an offer to make a picture in England and she is strongly considering it.

I wonder why she doesn't appear in concert as did Judy. Seems to me that would be the logical way for Deanna to come back.

I was extremely interested to hear that Oscar Strauss, who is in his eighties, and Author Ludwig Bemelmans, have combined their talents. Strauss is the composer of "The Chocolate Soldier" and of the screen score of the French movie "Le Ronde."

The idea is for Strauss to write a special waltz score for Bemelmans' book, "Now I Lay Me Down To Sleep." John Huston already has been contacted to produce and direct.

The choice of an actress is Katharine Hepburn who recently finished "The African Queen" for John Huston in Africa and London.

Van Heflin

He sails on the Ile De France on December 6 for London where he'll co-star with Wanda Hendrix in "The Mask Of Pharaoh." Both Van and his petite co-star, Wanda, have been negotiating with Mayflower Productions for several months. Now the money is in an American bank so both Van and Wanda will leave New York in December for England and Tangiers.

That means, of course, they won't be home for Christmas, but Frances will join Van in Europe in time for the holidays.

Israel, virgin territory so far as a feature length picture is concerned, will have its first motion picture filmed there when Stanley Kramer makes "The Juggler" for Columbia, in the Holy Land. This story of Isrel was written by Michael Blankfort, who spent some time there in 1949 and made extensive research.

"The Juggler" tells about a former European vaudevillian who escapes from a displaced persons camp and lands in Israel. Outside of an Israelite girl, the entire cast and technicians will be shipped from Hollywood.

Judy Garland's Broadway comeback has been very encouraging to Deanna Durbin, who, for months, because of her avoirdupois, refused to pose for Paris photographers.

Deanna lives in the south of France with her husband, Charles David, and her little girl, Jessica, five, and Peter, the new baby, and she had almost retired from the public eye.

Now the first evidence that she means to change her plans is sent to me in a clipping from one of the English newspapers showing Deanna with France's poet, Jacques Prevert. She has had an offer to make a picture in England and she is strongly considering it.

I wonder why she doesn't appear in concert as did Judy. Seems to me that would be the logical way for Deanna to come back.

I was extremely interested to hear that Oscar Strauss, who is in his eighties, and Author Ludwig Bemelmans, have combined their talents. Strauss is the composer of "The Chocolate Soldier" and of the screen score of the French movie "Le Ronde."

The idea is for Strauss to write a special waltz score for Bemelmans' book, "Now I Lay Me Down To Sleep." John Huston already has been contacted to produce and direct.

The choice of an actress is Katharine Hepburn who recently finished "The African Queen" for John Huston in Africa and London.

SPEAKS IN AREA — Former United States Senator Rush D. Holt of Weston, W. Va., spoke at the American Education Week program recently at Fort Ashby (W. Va.) High School. Several times a member of the West Virginia House of Delegates, Holt reached the zenith in 1934 when he was elected to the United States Senate while only 29 years old.

Garrett Man Gets Six Years For Assault

A 21-year-old ex-convict from Garrett County was sentenced Monday at Westminster to serve six years in prison after he admitted assaulting and robbing an expectant mother.

The defendant, Charles Richard Wright, told Judge James E. Boylan he attacked Mrs. Arthur E. Walsh at her farm home near Hampstead a week ago. He was jailed two years ago for stealing $300 from the Walshes.

Prosecutors said Wright, recently freed from the State Reformatory for Males, struck Mrs. Walsh on the head with a block of firewood. State's Attorney Donald C. Sponseller gave this version of the assault:

On November 13, Wright returned to the Walsh home and asked the woman for a ride into Hampstead. As Mrs. Walsh moved to go upstairs to dress for the trip, he struck her with the firewood. Dazed, she stumbled against a wall and cut her head on a table when she fell.

Wright then went to a strong box he had robbed previously, this time taking approximately $20.

While Mrs. Walsh sought aid and medical attention from neighbors, Wright escaped to a wheat field. There he later was captured by State Police from the Randallstown barracks.

Authorities said the prisoner had a knife in his possession when he was apprehended. However, he was not charged with using it on Mrs. Walsh.

No testimony was offered at yesterday's trial. Facts of the case were presented in statements from counsel. Mrs. Walsh expects her child next month.

Wright will serve the new sentence in the Maryland Penitentiary.

Men Of Church To Hold "Work Frolic" Thanksgiving Day

FROSTBURG—The men of the congregation of the Zion Church, Long Stretch, Garrett County, will spend Thanksgiving day cleaning two acres of ground near the church to enlarge the church cemetery.

The land was recently donated by Mrs. Maude Michael in memory of her husband, the late Earl Michael.

The church has been repainted, all pews refinished, a built-in bulletin board installed and the floor covered with carpet.

Following the rededication service conducted by Rev. Mr. Combs, the men of the congregation offered to donate their labor for a "work frolic" on Thanksgiving day, in order to clear the timber from at least part of the memorial burial ground.

Guidance Group Is Organized

KEYSER, W. Va.—Troop No. 27, Boy Scouts of America, sponsored by the Keyser Rotary Club, is undergoing a change that is expected to bring it back into active competition with other troops in the New Creek District.

The troop, inactive for several months, is being revitalized. First steps were taken at a recent meeting of the Scouters committee of the club at the home of Thomas Bess, Jr. W. E. Coffman, chairman of New Creek District, was given to understand that the troop will be given more adult assistance.

Bess, will be chairman of the group, with David G. Nuzum as secretary. Dr. Paul Giffin will be outdoorsman, and James Shay accepted the post of finance manager. Advancement work will be in charge of Harold Snyder, and George Barger will be in charge of special activities.

Rotary Troop now has 22 boys. Plans call for the appointment of a Scoutmaster and two assistants soon.

The Scouters decided on a general improvement program at the Scout Cabin at Overton place, which will include landscaping, interior decorating and new equipment.

Plans also call for organizing mothers of Scouts into an effective group to assist in the overall program of Scouting.

Another meeting of the group will be held in the assembly room at Potomac Valley Hospital following the program at which James Gelwicks will speak, Tuesday, November 26 at 7:30 p. m.

Garrett Man Gets Six Years For Assault

A 21-year-old ex-convict from Garrett County was sentenced Monday at Westminster to serve six years in prison after he admitted assaulting and robbing an expectant mother.

The defendant, Charles Richard Wright, told Judge James E. Boylan he attacked Mrs. Arthur E. Walsh at her farm home near Hampstead a week ago. He was jailed two years ago for stealing $300 from the Walshes.

Prosecutors said Wright, recently freed from the State Reformatory for Males, struck Mrs. Walsh on the head with a block of firewood. State's Attorney Donald C. Sponseller gave this version of the assault:

On November 13, Wright returned to the Walsh home and asked the woman for a ride into Hampstead. As Mrs. Walsh moved to go upstairs to dress for the trip, he struck her with the firewood. Dazed, she stumbled against a wall and cut her head on a table when she fell.

Wright then went to a strong box he had robbed previously, this time taking approximately $20.

While Mrs. Walsh sought aid and medical attention from neighbors, Wright escaped to a wheat field. There he later was captured by State Police from the Randallstown barracks.

Authorities said the prisoner had a knife in his possession when he was apprehended. However, he was not charged with using it on Mrs. Walsh.

No testimony was offered at yesterday's trial. Facts of the case were presented in statements from counsel. Mrs. Walsh expects her child next month.

Wright will serve the new sentence in the Maryland Penitentiary.

Radio And Television

By JOHN CROSBY

Formula For Mr. Shriner

The problem of what to do with Herb Shriner, one of the more serious dilemmas of our generation, has occupied the faculties of some of the deeper thinkers in television for some time now. It's a terrible problem. Shriner is at his best when he walks out in front of a curtain and tells his gentle stories about home life in Indiana—unassisted by Milton Berle, singing dogs or dancing girls.

And that ain't television, Mannie. It's got to have Milton Berle, singing dogs or dancing girls, preferably all three. Yet these ingredients are so essentially foreign to Mr. Shriner's personality that other avenues had to be explored. The man simply couldn't stand out there and be funny or people might die laughing and besides how would the audience get a chance to slip out to the icebox and get a beer?

• — • — •

It had to have a formula and I'm happy to report that some one has come up with a pretty good one. The Shriner formula, now encased in a new show called "Herb Shriner Time" (ABC-TV 9 p. m. EST Thursday), reminds me a good deal of a crack made by the late Ernie Byfield, proprietor of the Pump Room which rather specializes in flaming foods. Byfield was once sitting in the Pump Room with Lucius Beebe who was a little perplexed by the abundance of small fires leaping up from samovars all over the room. "Why all the flames?" he inquired.

"Well," said Byfield, "the customers like it and it doesn't hurt the food very much."

Similarly, the Shriner formula satisfies the requirements of this game called television and it doesn't hurt Shriner very much. The comedian strolls out in front of the cameras and starts talking about, say, the local postmaster. "We didn't mind when he read all the mail but when he got to answering it. . ." Presently, this leads into a story about a local lady who is long on geneology but short on cash. "She'd be in the 400 if we had that many people here," says Shriner. Her daughter is in love with the son of a man who is in the reverse position, awash with money but unlimned in the social register.

• — • — •

That, of course, is a story that has been told before. You might say it's the basic story of all time which isn't to be held against it. Presently the characters appear and the task of getting these gene-crossed lovers together assumes dramatic shape. While they're acting out their problems, Shriner wanders in and out of the proceedings, using the "Our Town" technique as narrator. That is, he's sometimes invisible and unheard, sometimes part of the plot.

The plots are likely to lead you all over town—into the local barber shop, the library, the city council, and a lot of front porches—and you meet a good many of the townsfolk on the way. The stories themselves are, I'm afraid, rather sticky with sentiment but they are relieved and enlivened by Shriner's comments about his town—"Our town got a college, too. Sort of made up for not having a high school."—and about its people. "Being dumb like that he almost had to get rich or he couldn't make a living."

In anyone else's hands this assignment would be either pretentious or silly but Mr. Shriner is heavily endowed with good looks, charm, a wonderful sense of timing, and a grin that would melt an iceberg at fifty paces. Sentimentality that might ordinarily be a little trying becomes instead touching and, at the same time, amusing.

• — • — •

My enthusiasm for Mr. S.'s comments are not entirely untempered, though. Lately, conceivably because he burns up an awful lot of material, Mr. Shriner has been uttering jokes which are not unlike those of any other comedian, jokes on which the fingerprints of gagwriters are clearly visible. I suppose it was inevitable that the writers would gather around Mr. Shriner but I hope he keeps them decently in hand.

Incidentally, the comedian does his own commercials which are as deft and funny as any you'll find on the air. The sponsor is Arrow shirts and Mr. Shriner likes to ramble through the factory where the shirts are being made, talking away about the materials and the women employes: "These girls have been here a long time. Well, they lose one now an then. Girls go on making shirts for men this way—they get so they want to meet one." I don't know if it sells any shirts but it's certainly nice on the audience and the sponsor deserves a nice little kiss for permitting it.

WHY GO UP IN THE AIR?

WHAT GOES up must come down. It is that way with a bridge player who "goes up in the air" over some action by his partner before he knows what the outcome is to be. It would not pay to glare, frown, growl and grumble while the play goes on, even if he receives a bad setting after taking out your business double. Your actions then would only have the effect of destroying the partnership. But suppose he makes a net profit for your side because of his takeout. Then you have a job of apologizing to do.

West hit the ceiling when his partner took out the double of 5-Spades, as he had expected a nice dividend in that declaration, which he expected to beat all by himself, whereas he reckoned the 6-Clubs would be soundly beaten. He grimaced and rumbled still more after North doubled the club slam. East could have let the performance upset him, but paid no attention, as he reckoned he had done right regardless of what might be the result.

South selected the spade Q for his lead, which the A won, and East then pulled the club 9 from dummy. North, for no reason in particular, held up his A and the K won for East. The club J then went to the A, only trick the defense got. The diamond return was won in dummy, a spade ruffed, a few clubs scored, and the diamond K furnished entry to the dummy to use the heart A for discarding East's last diamond.

By now West was effusively apologetic, as East's bidding of the slam had produced a neat plus of points over what could have been scored by playing against the opponents' spades. That contract might have been set three tricks with two diamond honors, the heart A, ruff of a heart and eventually the spade A.

Formula For Mr. Shriner.

The problem of what to do with Herb Shriner, one of the more serious dilemmas of our generation, has occupied the faculties of some of the deeper thinkers in television for some time now. It's a terrible problem. Shriner is at his best when he walks out in front of a curtain and tells his gentle stories about home life in Indiana—unassisted by Milton Berle, singing dogs or dancing girls.

And that ain't television, Mannie. It's got to have Milton Berle, singing dogs or dancing girls, preferably all three. Yet these ingredients are so essentially foreign to Mr. Shriner's personality that other avenues had to be explored. The man simply couldn't stand out there and be funny or people might die laughing and besides how would the audience get a chance to slip out to the icebox and get a beer?

• — • — •

It had to have a formula and I'm happy to report that some one has come up with a pretty good one. The Shriner formula, now encased in a new show called "Herb Shriner Time" (ABC-TV 9 p. m. EST Thursday), reminds me a good deal of a crack made by the late Ernie Byfield, proprietor of the Pump Room which rather specializes in flaming foods. Byfield was once sitting in the Pump Room with Lucius Beebe who was a little perplexed by the abundance of small fires leaping up from samovars all over the room. "Why all the flames?" he inquired.

"Well," said Byfield, "the customers like it and it doesn't hurt the food very much."

Similarly, the Shriner formula satisfies the requirements of this game called television and it doesn't hurt Shriner very much. The comedian strolls out in front of the cameras and starts talking about, say, the local postmaster. "We didn't mind when he read all the mail but when he got to answering it. . ." Presently, this leads into a story about a local lady who is long on geneology but short on cash. "She'd be in the 400 if we had that many people here," says Shriner. Her daughter is in love with the son of a man who is in the reverse position, awash with money but unlimned in the social register.

• — • — •

That, of course, is a story that has been told before. You might say it's the basic story of all time which isn't to be held against it. Presently the characters appear and the task of getting these gene-crossed lovers together assumes dramatic shape. While they're acting out their problems, Shriner wanders in and out of the proceedings, using the "Our Town" technique as narrator. That is, he's sometimes invisible and unheard, sometimes part of the plot.

The plots are likely to lead you all over town—into the local barber shop, the library, the city council, and a lot of front porches—and you meet a good many of the townsfolk on the way. The stories themselves are, I'm afraid, rather sticky with sentiment but they are relieved and enlivened by Shriner's comments about his town—"Our town got a college, too. Sort of made up for not having a high school."—and about its people. "Being dumb like that he almost had to get rich or he couldn't make a living."

In anyone else's hands this assignment would be either pretentious or silly but Mr. Shriner is heavily endowed with good looks, charm, a wonderful sense of timing, and a grin that would melt an iceberg at fifty paces. Sentimentality that might ordinarily be a little trying becomes instead touching and, at the same time, amusing.

• — • — •

My enthusiasm for Mr. S.'s comments are not entirely untempered, though. Lately, conceivably because he burns up an awful lot of material, Mr. Shriner has been uttering jokes which are not unlike those of any other comedian, jokes on which the fingerprints of gagwriters are clearly visible. I suppose it was inevitable that the writers would gather around Mr. Shriner but I hope he keeps them decently in hand.

Incidentally, the comedian does his own commercials which are as deft and funny as any you'll find on the air. The sponsor is Arrow shirts and Mr. Shriner likes to ramble through the factory where the shirts are being made, talking away about the materials and the women employes: "These girls have been here a long time. Well, they lose one now an then. Girls go on making shirts for men this way—they get so they want to meet one." I don't know if it sells any shirts but it's certainly nice on the audience and the sponsor deserves a nice little kiss for permitting it.

Henry Shriver, Trustee, vs. No. 9582 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland. Cumberland, Maryland, November 17th, 1951.

This is to give notice that an audit filed in the above entitled cause, distributing the funds in the hands of Clarence F. Schafer, Trustee, will be ready for ratification on the 6th day of December, 1951, unless cause to the contrary be shown.

Joseph E. Boden, Clerk
N.-Adv.-Nov. 20-21.

Mary Frances M. Smith, vs. Harry M. Smith, Jr., 817 Edgewood Drive, Cumberland, Maryland, No. 22,349 Equity, in the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

The object of this suit is to procure a decree of divorce A VINCULO MATRIMONII by the Complainant from the Respondent.

The bill of complaint states that the parties were married on the 21st day of August, 1949, by the Pastor of the First Methodist Church in Frostburg, Allegany County, Maryland, and resided together in Frostburg, Maryland, until July 2, 1951; that no children have been born of said marriage, that since said marriage the Complainant has paid nearly all expenses of maintaining their home, and that the Respondent did not contribute to her support; that the Respondent, at divers times and places, since said marriage and prior to the filing of the bill of complaint, has committed the crime of adultery with certain persons whose names will be disclosed at the time of the hearing of this case, and that the Complainant has not lived or cohabited with said Respondent since she discovered his said adulteries; that the Complainant and Respondent are both adults and have resided in Allegany County, Maryland, all their lives; that the Respondent in this case has kept out of the way of or secreted himself to avoid the services of process and may have left the State.

It is thereupon, this 6th day of November, 1951, ordered by the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland, that the Complainant, by causing a copy of this Order to be inserted in some newspaper, published in Allegany County, once a week for four successive weeks before the 8th day of December, 1951, give notice to the said absent Respondent of the object and substance of this Bill, warning him to appear in this Court in person or by solicitor, on or before the 24th day of December, next, to show cause, if any he have, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

JOSEPH E. BODEN, Clerk.

Sears Will Sell "Allstate" Auto

Car Will Be Built By Kaiser-Frazer

CHICAGO, (AP) — Sears, Roebuck and Co., announced today it will begin selling a low-priced passenger automobile to be built by Kaiser-Frazer Corp.

The new car, named the "Allstate," will be sold in 17 cities in the South and Southwest before Christmas.

It will be built for Sears and the K-F Willow Run, Mich., works.

T. V. Houser, vice president in charge of merchandising for Sears, said the retail stores selected to sell the new car already have the necessary display, sales and service facilities.

The stores which will introduce the car already are doing a large business in the sale of batteries, tires and automobile accessories, Houser reported.

Sears said it could not identify at this time the 17 cities which will handle the car sales.

Also, the company said no price would be quoted or estimated beyond the fact that it will be a 'low-priced" car until marketing plans are completed.

Parsons Firemen Busy Over Weekend

PARSONS, W. Va.—The Parsons Volunteer Fire department had a very busy weekend starting with firemen and their ambulance going to Aurora Friday evening because of the airplane crash.

Firemen returned Sunday and spent the entire day in the search for the third airplane victim.

Firemen were called to Hambleton Saturday at 7:30 p. m. due to an electric wiring fire at the home of Hayes Delaney which was extinguished before firemen arrived with no damages reported.

Two ambulance trips also were made to an Elkins hospital on Saturday and Sunday to remove ill patients to a hospital, including Dick Fansler of Hendricks.

Emperor Signs Jap Treaty, Security Pact

TOKYO, Tuesday, Nov. 21 (AP)—Emperor Hirohito signed the Japanese peace treaty and the U. S.-Japanese security pact yesterday at Nara.

A Japanese Foreign Office courier is scheduled to take them to Washington by air, leaving Tokyo Nov. 25.

Because the emperor is on tour and did not have the privy seal with him, he merely signed the documents. The seal will be affixed later in Tokyo, to be followed by formal announcement of the Japanese ratification.

U. S. Rejects Russia's Protest On Trieste

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 (AP) — The United States yesterday rejected Russia's latest protest on the status of Trieste as "nonsense."

The State Department fired the Kremlin's own accusation right back at Moscow, declaring that the Soviets are to blame for the failure to reach agreement on making a free city out of the key Adriatic seaport.

Trieste lies on the frontier between Italy and Yugoslavia.

Referring to Russia's repeated refusal to accept a Western-backed candidate as governor of the proposed Trieste free territory, the State Department said:

"Responsibility for this state of affairs lies squarely upon the Soviet government, whose conduct following conclusion of the (Italian) peace treaty rendered the settlement envisaged therein impossible of execution."

The party of stars, Ava Gardner, Frank Sinatra, Dorothy Kirsten, Tony Curtis and Janet Leigh, Jimmy McHugh and Jimmy Van Heusen, who are putting on the midnight matinee for the Duke of Edinburgh's playground charity, will go on to Germany. They'll give the same show for our GIs that they give in London.

The movie baby who grew up, Rose Marie, is having a personal triumph in "Top Banana" on Broadway.

Marie Wilson's beau, Robert Fallon, will teach youngsters the rudiments of flying via a television series, "Junior Aces."

Good for Jimmy McHugh, who's always doing something for someone. He's just raised enough money to buy a new respirator for polio victims. The returns came from the Golden Nugget Ball benefit at La Quinta.

Mary Frances M. Smith, vs. Harry M. Smith, Jr., 817 Edgewood Drive, Cumberland, Maryland. No. 22,349 Equity, in the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

The object of this suit is to procure a decree of divorce A VINCULO MATRIMONII by the Complainant from the Respondent.

It is thereupon, this 6th day of November, 1951, ordered by the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland, that the Complainant, by causing a copy of this Order to be inserted in some newspaper, published in Allegany County, once a week for four successive weeks before the 6th day of December, 1951, give notice to the said absent Respondent of the object and substance of this Bill, and warning him to appear in this Court in person or by solicitor, on or before the 24th day of December, next, to show cause, if any he have, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

Sears Will Sell "Allstate" Auto

Car Will Be Built By Kaiser-Frazer

CHICAGO, (AP) — Sears, Roebuck and Co., announced today it will begin selling a low-priced passenger automobile to be built by Kaiser-Frazer Corp.

The new car, named the "Allstate," will be sold in 17 cities in the South and Southwest before Christmas.

It will be built for Sears and the K-F Willow Run, Mich., works.

T. V. Houser, vice president in charge of merchandising for Sears, said the retail stores selected to sell the new car already have the necessary display, sales and service facilities.

The stores which will introduce the car already are doing a large business in the sale of batteries, tires and automobile accessories, Houser reported.

Sears said it could not identify at this time the 17 cities which will handle the car sales.

Also, the company said no price would be quoted or estimated beyond the fact that it will be a 'low-priced" car until marketing plans are completed.

Emperor Signs Jap Treaty, Security Pact

TOKYO, Tuesday, Nov. 21 (AP)—Emperor Hirohito signed the Japanese peace treaty and the U. S.-Japanese security pact yesterday at Nara.

A Japanese Foreign Office courier is scheduled to take them to Washington by air, leaving Tokyo Nov. 25.

Because the emperor is on tour and did not have the privy seal with him, he merely signed the documents. The seal will be affixed later in Tokyo, to be followed by formal announcement of the Japanese ratification.

U. S. Rejects Russia's Protest On Trieste

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 (AP) — The United States yesterday rejected Russia's latest protest on the status of Trieste as "nonsense."

The State Department fired the Kremlin's own accusation right back at Moscow, declaring that the Soviets are to blame for the failure to reach agreement on making a free city out of the key Adriatic seaport.

Trieste lies on the frontier between Italy and Yugoslavia.

Referring to Russia's repeated refusal to accept a Western-backed candidate as governor of the proposed Trieste free territory, the State Department said:

"Responsibility for this state of affairs lies squarely upon the Soviet government, whose conduct following conclusion of the (Italian) peace treaty rendered the settlement envisaged therein impossible of execution."

Man, Woman Die As Plane Explodes In Air Near Here

Bedford Scene Of Second Area Crash

A man and woman were killed yesterday afternoon when their light two-seater plane exploded and crashed against Wills Mountain three miles south of Bedford, Pa.

Pennsylvania State Police listed the dead as W. L. Doyle, 36, of Toledo, O., and Mrs. Virginia Bartlett, about the same ago, of Indianapolis, Ind.

Eyewitnesses said the Ercoupe plane's single engine sputtered and coughed, then went dead. A moment later an explosion sent two bodies plummeting earthward. It was just before 1 p. m.

Air searchers from the Bedford airport and members of Bedford Fire Department reached the scene —800 yards from the Bedford County Home—at about the same time.

Bodies Crushed

They found two badly crushed bodies, the bucket seats from the plane, and small bits of wreckage. About 150 yards away was the rest of the plane.

Papers found on the bodies indicated Doyle was a traveling representative of a Toledo firm. A Harrisburg, Pa. hotel receipt said "Mr. and Mrs. Doyle" left the hotel at 9:38 a. m. yesterday.

Later, in Toledo, Mrs. Doyle telephoned a newspaper office after learning that firts reports said she had died in the crash. Shortly after, a Mr. Siefker of Indianapolis telephoned State Police at Bedford to say he was certain the dead woman was Mrs. Bartlett, his daughter.

Police said Mrs. Doyle has a five-year-old daughter. Mrs. Bartlett, they said, was a divorcee.

Lost In Clouds

Authorities pieced the story together this way:

Doyle and Mrs. Bartlett left Harrisburg yesterday morning to fly to Wheeling. Between Hagerstown and Altoona they radioed to Civil Aeronautics Administration officials in Altoona to report they were lost, out of gas, and were being buffeted by strong northwest winds.

Captain Millard Lossing of Pittsburgh, an All American Airways pilot flying from Pittsburgh to Washington, overheard the radio conversation. Unable to talk directly with Doyle, he called the CAA and got permission to climb from 3,000 to 4,500 feet to look for the smaller ship.

He nosed the big DC-3 upward through a cloud layer, found Doyle, then led him safely to the Hagerstown airport. Doyle spent an hour and 20 minutes refueling, then took off on the fatal leg of his flight.

Investigation Starts

After the crash, the Pennsylvania State Police Aeronautical Division launched an immediate investigation into the cause of the crash. Coroner Vernon E. Geisel said he planned no investigation.

One of the eyewitnesses, Mrs. Homer Christ, who lives about 1,000 yards from the scene of the crash, said the plane was high in the air when it exploded.

"It seemed to sputter and then exploded," she said. "I saw two bodies falling to the earth."

A receipt found on Doyle's body indicated he had chartered the plane in Hagerstown, but police said they believed he owned the airplane.

The crash was the second fatal air accident in the Tri-State area in five days. Last Friday, an Air Force B-26 bomber exploded and crashed near Aurora, W. Va., killing at least two of the three officers aboard. Rescuers are still searching for the third man.

Rescue Workers Redouble Effort To Find Airman

Search To Fan Out Into Maryland Today

Air Force rescue personnel today will search rugged mountain areas in Preston County, W. Va., and fan out into nearby Maryland today as the search continues for the airman believed to have parachuted successfully from a plane which crashed near Oakland last Friday.

Capt. D. D. Bachman, Westover Air Base, who is directing the 250 men engaged in the search, said the territory to be covered today is the most rugged in the section to be searched.

Aurora, W. Va., High School has been turned over to the Air Force as headquarters for the search parties which are using the gymnasium as a base.

The school cafeteria, which normally feeds about 208 children, yesterday served meals to over 400 persons.

Food is being prepared by a mess detail from Greater Pittsburgh Air Base, aided by a team of area women led by Mrs. Dale Meyers.

Searchers yesterday covered about a 15-mile area in below freezing temperatures for Lt. Prentice E. Ross, Jr., observer in the doomed plane.

The search was begun by land rescue crews searching the difficult terrain.

Five CAP planes later joined in the search and by late afternoon, a helicopter piloted by Capt. Bachman was able to work for a short time.

Local Pilots Alerted

Pilots of Fort Cumberland Flight, Civil Air Patrol, were alerted last night by Capt. Thomas Wood, Martinsburg, W. Va. Some of the eight planes available are expected to join rescue efforts today.

Capt. Bachman said rescue planes and land parties have been briefed on the 15-mile area to be combed today.

This includes areas from the scene of the crash near Eglon, W. Va., on a northeasterly path to include Crellin, Md., and from Red House to Crellin.

Joining in the big rescue job are 15 Air Force rescue specialists, 100 men from Greater Pittsburgh Air Force Base, high school students, boy scouts and other civilian volunteers.

Experienced hunters of the area, he said, are serving as guides for the search parties and State Police highway patrols are providing communications between search crews.

'Copter To Aid

Capt. Bachman said an intensive search will be made of the some 40 square miles in which it is likely Lt. Ross might have jumped.

The Air Force pilot is slated to continue work today with the "Copter" which is able to hover about 150 feet from the ground and at speeds as low as 30 feet.

Search efforts were redoubled yesterday at 8 a. m. as land rescue teams spread out over the area during a heavy snowstorm which brought four more inches of snow down on the area.

The men pushed through shin deep snow in hope of finding the lost airman alive. The fact that authorities believe the man could have bailed out of the B-26 light bomber, and that he was well versed in survival under artic conditions, spurred them to reach the missing man in time.

Is Believed Alive

Hope that the airman survived the crash by jumping is based on the fact that the camera hatch he would have ripped off before bailing out is still missing.

If Lt. Ross survived the jump and was able to get into a cave or some type of shelter, rescue personnel said, he may be able to survive.

But one of the rescue men, Sgt. Farmer, a veteran of 100 Artic rescues, said "If we can't find a crash victim in three days in this type of weather, the odds are against success."

Teams are searching along three parallels of the flight each day, fanning out as they range farther from the crash area.

Bodies of two airmen killed in the crash were found in or near the wreckage. They were First Lt. Jerome J. Walsh, pilot, and William L. Langdon, Morristown, N. Y.

CHILLED RESCUE WORKERS—The two-man crew of an Air Force H-5 helicopter joined the search for First Lt. Prentice E. Ross, believed still alive in the wilderness of Preston County, W. Va. after his B-26 bomber crashed Friday, killing the other two officers aboard. In the photo are (left) Sgt. Crumpler of Clinton, N. C., engineer, and Captain D. D. Bachman, Rochester, N. Y., pilot. They landed their 'copter Monday at noon behind the Aurora school, after a delay at Andrews Air Force Base, Washington, D. C., to replace a rotor head.

SEARCH BEGINS—Members of the 71st Fighter Interceptor Squadron unload equipment before starting their search in rugged mountain terrain for First Lt. Prentice E. Ross, Jr., believed to be still alive after a bomber crash Friday which killed his two companions in the Air Force plane. Officers said Ross was well versed in arctic survival methods and would have a fair chance in the deep snows and sub-freezing temperatures of Preston County, W. Va., if he bailed out before the stricken ship exploded and crashed.

BRIEFING SESSION—Some of the 100 airmen of the 71st Fighter Interceptor Squadron who volunteered to search for an airman missing since his B-26 crashed Friday are briefed by Captain A. F. Wozniak in Aurora School before resuming the search.

Davis said the convention will be in session until all work is completed, but reported the meeting is not expected to last for more than two days.

The RIU early this year won the right to continue as bargaining agent for engineers and firemen on the railway after its strength was challenged by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen. It was the third such poll asked by the B. of L. F. and E.

Attorneys File Appeal Notice For Beeman

Action Expected To Stay Execution

Notice of an appeal to the Maryland Court of Appeals for Noah Earl Beeman, 24-year old Midland man, scheduled to die by hanging the week of December 3, was filed yesterday with Joseph E. Boden, clerk of Allegany County Circuit Court.

Earl E. Manges and Thomas N. Berry, who served as Beeman's court appointed attorneys during the trial in Allegany County Circuit Court, filed the notice.

Convicted By Jury

A jury convicted Beeman October 18 of first degree murder in the stabbing death of his 18-year old wife, Mrs. Donna Airhart Beeman. She fell dead in the early morning hours of August 12 in front of her parents' home on Railroad Street in Frostburg.

Associate Judge George Henderson, who presided at Beeman's two-day trial, sentenced him on October 30. He stipulated that the hanging should take place at the State Penitentiary in Baltimore the week of December 3. The exact date was to be determined by the warden.

Court attaches indicated yesterday that the notice of appeal undoubtedly will stay the Midland man's execution.

Also filed yesterday was the affidavit of Manges and Berry that they "verily believe that substantial grounds exist for the taking of an appeal to the Maryland Court of Appeals."

Third Document

A third document filed yesterday was Beeman's pauper's oath in which he swears that he is "completely and utterly destitute and without funds to pay the cost of appeal."

Beeman's trial expenses in the court here were paid by county funds. As a result of the pauper's oath, the state now will pay the costs of Beeman's appeal.

Under state law, the court stenographer and clerk now have 30 days from yesterday to file the court record in the case with the State Court of Appeals. The appellant's attorneys are given 30 days after the filing of the court record for their presentation of printed briefs. Then, State's Attorney Paul M. Fletcher will have 15 days after the appellant's briefs are filed to submit his briefs.

It is not expected that the Court of Appeals will hear the Beeman appeal before mid-January.

Two children sleeping in an upstairs bedroom were carried to safety shortly after the fire broke out. The room is located over Karp's Warehouse.

Temperatures Drop In Snow Covered Area

New Low For Year Expected For City

Old Man Winter has been working overtime in the area the past week, dumping 12 inches of snow in the Oakland area and blowing a cold blast in the Cumberland section.

One foot of snow was reported in Thomas, W. Va. last night with the mercury down to four degrees above. At Deal, Pa., a layer of six inches of snow was recorded with the temperature at 10 degrees. Both places report cloudy atmosphere and threat of new snow.

At Altamont, the weather was clear with temperature at 18 degrees. Terra Alta, W. Va. was also clear last night with a 20 degree reading on the thermometer. This section still has six to eight inches of snow which fell in the last two days.

Weather Clear

In Cumberland, the weather was clear last night, but a new low temperature for the year is expected today. The low yesterday was 21 degrees and the high was 31. The weather station at Constitution Park reported all wind diminished last night with the thermometer steadily dropping.

Roads in the area were still in dangerous condition last night although SRC cindering crews worked all day yesterday ashing the highways. They were especially bad in Garrett County.

On top of the 12 inches of snow in Garrett County, a cold blast bringing mercury to 16 degrees last night settled over that area.

Temperature in Frostburg last night was down to 17 degrees with atmosphere clear and calm. A layer of three inches of snow covers the Frostburg district.

Blustery Week End Predicted

About four inches of new snow fell in Allegany County yesterday but was confined mostly to the mountain tops. This makes a total of six inches of snow blanketing much of the county.

Although roads in the county were slippery west of Cumberland, SRC authorities said no chains were needed by motorists traveling east of the city.

The Weather Bureau said most of Maryland can expect relief from the cold snap, but Western Maryland is in for more chilling rain or snow.

Forecasters reported clear and warmer weather is in store today and tomorrow for the state, but the Western Maryland mountainous section can look for rain or snow Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Man, Woman Die As Plane Explodes In Air Near Here

Bedford Scene Of Second Area Crash

A man and woman were killed yesterday afternoon when their light two-seater plane exploded and crashed against Wills Mountain three miles south of Bedford, Pa.

Pennsylvania State Police listed the dead as W. L. Doyle, 36, of Toledo, O., and Mrs. Virginia Bartlett, about the same ago, of Indianapolis, Ind.

Eyewitnesses said the Ercoupe plane's single engine sputtered and coughed, then went dead. A moment later an explosion sent two bodies plummeting earthward. It was just before 1 p. m.

Air searchers from the Bedford airport and members of Bedford Fire Department reached the scene —800 yards from the Bedford County Home—at about the same time.

Bodies Crushed

They found two badly crushed bodies, the bucket seats from the plane, and small bits of wreckage. About 150 yards away was the rest of the plane.

Papers found on the bodies indicated Doyle was a traveling representative of a Toledo firm. A Harrisburg, Pa. hotel receipt said "Mr. and Mrs. Doyle" left the hotel at 9:38 a. m. yesterday.

Later, in Toledo, Mrs. Doyle telephoned a newspaper office after learning that firts reports said she had died in the crash. Shortly after, a Mr. Siefker of Indianapolis telephoned State Police at Bedford to say he was certain the dead woman was Mrs. Bartlett, his daughter.

Police said Mrs. Doyle has a five-year-old daughter. Mrs. Bartlett, they said, was a divorcee.

Lost In Clouds

Authorities pieced the story together this way:

Doyle and Mrs. Bartlett left Harrisburg yesterday morning to fly to Wheeling. Between Hagerstown and Altoona they radioed to Civil Aeronautics Administration officials in Altoona to report they were lost, out of gas, and were being buffeted by strong northwest winds.

Captain Millard Lossing of Pittsburgh, an All American Airways pilot flying from Pittsburgh to Washington, overheard the radio conversation. Unable to talk directly with Doyle, he called the CAA and got permission to climb from 3,000 to 4,500 feet to look for the smaller ship.

He nosed the big DC-3 upward through a cloud layer, found Doyle, then led him safely to the Hagerstown airport. Doyle spent an hour and 20 minutes refueling, then took off on the fatal leg of his flight.

Investigation Starts

After the crash, the Pennsylvania State Police Aeronautical Division launched an immediate investigation into the cause of the crash. Coroner Vernon B. Geisel said he planned no investigation.

One of the eyewitnesses, Mrs. Homer Christ, who lives about 1,000 yards from the scene of the crash, said the plane was high in the air when it exploded.

"It seemed to sputter and then exploded," she said. "I saw two bodies falling to the earth."

A receipt found on Doyle's body indicated he had chartered the plane in Hagerstown, but police said they believed he owned the airplane.

The crash was the second fatal air accident in the Tri-State area in five days. Last Friday, an Air Force B-26 bomber exploded and crashed near Aurora, W. Va., killing at least two of the three officers aboard. Rescuers are still searching for the third man.

Rescue Workers Redouble Effort To Find Airman

Search To Fan Out Into Maryland Today

Air Force rescue personnel today will search rugged mountain areas in Preston County, W. Va., and fan out into nearby Maryland today as the search continues for the airman believed to have parachuted successfully from a plane which crashed near Oakland last Friday.

Capt. D. D. Bachman, Westover Air Base, who is directing the 250 men engaged in the search, said the territory to be covered today is the most rugged in the section to be searched.

Aurora, W. Va., High School has been turned over to the Air Force as headquarters for the search parties which are using the gymnasium as a base.

The school cafeteria, which normally feeds about 208 children, yesterday served meals to over 400 persons.

Food is being prepared by a mess detail from Greater Pittsburgh Air Base, aided by a team of area women led by Mrs. Dale Meyers.

Searchers yesterday covered about a 15-mile area in below freezing temperatures for Lt. Prentice E. Ross, Jr., observer in the doomed plane.

The search was begun by land rescue crews searching the difficult terrain.

Five CAP planes later joined in the search and by late afternoon, a helicopter piloted by Capt. Bachman was able to work for a short time.

Local Pilots Alerted

Pilots of Fort Cumberland Flight, Civil Air Patrol, were alerted last night by Capt. Thomas Wood, Martinsburg, W. Va. Some of the eight planes available are expected to join rescue efforts today.

Capt. Bachman said rescue planes and land parties have been briefed on the 15-mile area to be combed today.

This includes areas from the scene of the crash near Eglon, W. Va., on a northeasterly path to include Crellin, Md., and from Red House to Crellin.

Joining in the big rescue job are 15 Air Force rescue specialists, 100 men from Greater Pittsburgh Air Force Base, high school students, boy scouts and other civilian volunteers.

Experienced hunters of the area, he said, are serving as guides for the search parties and State Police highway patrols are providing communications between search crews.

'Copter To Aid

Capt. Bachman said an intensive search will be made of the some 40 square miles in which it is likely Lt. Ross might have jumped.

The Air Force pilot is slated to continue work today with the "Copter" which is able to hover about 150 feet from the ground and at speeds as low as 30 feet.

Search efforts were redoubled yesterday at 8 a. m. as land rescue teams spread out over the area during a heavy snowstorm which brought four more inches of snow down on the area.

The men pushed through shin deep snow in hope of finding the lost airman alive. The fact that authorities believe the man could have bailed out of the B-26 light bomber, and that he was well versed in survival under artic conditions, spurred them to reach the missing man in time.

Is Believed Alive

Hope that the airman survived the crash by jumping is based on the fact that the camera hatch he would have ripped off before bailing out is still missing.

If Lt. Ross survived the jump and was able to get into a cave or some type of shelter, rescue personnel said, he may be able to survive.

But one of the rescue men, Sgt. Farmer, a veteran of 100 Artic rescues, said "If we can't find a crash victim in three days in this type of weather, the odds are against success."

Teams are searching along three parallels of the flight each day, fanning out as they range farther from the crash area.

Bodies of two airmen killed in the crash were found in or near the wreckage. They were First Lt. Jerome J. Walsh, pilot, and William L. Langdon, Morristown, N. Y.

Officers said Ross was well versed in arctic survival methods and would have a fair chance in the deep snows and sub-freezing temperatures of Preston County, W. Va., if he bailed out before the stricken ship exploded and crashed.

RIU Will Hold First Convention Here On Friday

National Officers Will Be Elected

The Railroad Industrial Union will open its first national convention in this city Friday.

Elmer E. Davis, Valley Road, president, said the convention will begin November 23 at 10 a. m. in the conference room of the Fort Cumberland Hotel.

Principal business on the agenda are the election of national officers and changes in the by-laws of the union representing engineers, firemen and hostlers of the Western Maryland Railway.

Attending will be official delegates from lodges in Baltimore, Hagerstown and Cumberland, Md., Dunbar, Pa., and Elkins, W. Va.

The RIU was formed in Cumberland October 15, 1947, and succeeded a District 40, United Mine Workers of America, organization.

Davis has served as president of the RIU since its organization.

Each lodge will send one delegate and one board member to the convention.

Davis said the convention will be in session until all work is completed, but reported the meeting is not expected to last for more than two days.

The RIU early this year won the right to continue as bargaining agent for engineers and firemen on the railway after its strength was challenged by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen. It was the third such poll asked by the B. of L. F. and E.
